GRAND JURY TAKES UP MORE CHARGES OF FRAUD IN THE PRIMARY ELECTION

INSURANCE ON SUICIDES IS HELD TO BE PAYABLE

Supreme Court Rules Against Company Resisting Claim on Public Policy Grounds.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—An insurance policy on the life of a person who commits suicide is payable, if all conditions of the policy are complied with, the Supreme Court ruled today in sustaining lower court decrees in a suit brought against the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. by a beneficiary under a policy obtained by her husband.

The company withheld payment on the ground that it was contrary to public policy to pay indemnity on the life of a suicide.

Council for the company contended that the courts had held repeatedly that neither the insured nor the beneficiary should do anything to "wrongfully accelerate the maturity of the policy."

COLLEGE STUDENTS STRIKE OVER HAZING OF FRESHMEN

Two Hundred and Fifty Walk Out at St. John's of Annapolis After Refusal to Compromise.

By the Associated Press.
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 15.—Refusing to accept a compromise settlement offered by the board of visitors and governors of St. John's College relative to the hazing of freshmen, the sophomore class walked out in a body today and was followed by the junior, senior and freshmen classes, about 200 students in all.

HUNDREDS SEE KILLING IN AUTO

Kansas City Taxi Chauffeur Shoots Employer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 15.—A crossing policeman was among hundreds who saw Dewey Morgan, 21 years old, shot to death by Vin P. Miller while the two were in Morgan's auto, on the corner of Twelfth and Main streets at 3:30 a. m. today. Following the shooting, Miller surrendered to the crossing policeman. At police headquarters Miller asserted that his wife had left him and that Morgan was responsible.

Miller said he worked for Morgan as a driver of one of two or three cars operated by the slain man in the taxicab service.

NEGRO LYNCHED IN VIRGINIA

By the Associated Press.
BRISTOL, Va.-Tenn., Nov. 15.—Dave Hunt, 35 years old, a negro, captured after a chase on a passenger train and held for an alleged assault on a white woman, was taken from the jail at Wise, Va., early yesterday by 75 men and hanged to a bridge near Kent Junction.

After the lynching the mob quietly dispersed and no arrests have been reported. Entry was gained to the jail by breaking down the doors. The alleged attack on the woman, who is 65 years old, occurred at her home Friday. Shortly afterward she flagged a passenger train as it came and told members of the crew she had been attacked by the negro.

WOMAN HIGH JUMPS 54 1/2 INCHES

World's Record Claimed for Women in French Games.

By the Associated Press.
CAREN, Normandy, Nov. 15.—Miss Elise Constant of the Caen Gymnastic Society cleared the bar at 54 1/2 inches and 42 centimeters (about 4 feet 4 1/2 inches) at the Caen stadium yesterday. The performance was under the control of the Athletic Commission of Lower Normandy.

The French claim this is a world's record for the women's high jump.

Miss Robertson Spent $2940.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Expenditures of $2940 were made in the campaign on behalf of Miss Alice Robertson of the Second Oklahoma District, the second woman to be elected to Congress, according to a report filed today with the Clerk of the House of Representatives by her campaign manager. Receipts were given as $2615, and the deficit it was stated, will be made up from subsequent collections. "To ratify the result of the election," Miss Robertson declared "no pledges or promises were made."

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF TWO ACTRESSES IN CHICAGO PARK

Their Bruised Bodies Found on Lake Front After Police Receive Telephone Call From a Hotel.

LEFT ROOM SATURDAY NIGHT TO BUY WINE

Girls' Hair Matted With Burrs—Police Say Evidence at the Scene Indicates They Were Murdered

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The bodies of two young actresses are at the morgue today while the police are investigating their mysterious death early yesterday in Grant Park, within a few hundred feet of Michigan boulevard. The girls died under circumstances which indicate murder.

A mysterious telephone call notified the police yesterday morning that the bodies were lying on the lake front 50 feet from the Chicago yacht club, at the end of Jackson boulevard. The call came from a pay station in a Michigan avenue hotel.

At the foot of the outer driveway along the lake the bodies were found. Just as the mysterious informant had said. Both girls' hair was matted with burrs. There are no marks of the kind in Grant Park. The bodies were bruised.

James Meeks and Robert McCarthy, employees of a theatrical company playing here, identified the bodies as Miss Marie Alma Ramsey, stock show player and vaudeville actress, and Miss Lillian Thompson, said to be the daughter of John Thompson, chief engineer of the New York Hippodrome. McCarthy and the girls had an apartment on the North Side.

The two women left the apartment at 9 o'clock Saturday night and visited an Italian grocery a few blocks away where they purchased olive oil, chestnuts and wine. Police were unable to find anyone who saw them between 9 o'clock Saturday night and 9 o'clock Sunday morning, when the bodies were found.

Miss Ramsey, whose real name is said to be Mary Rhodes, was born in Altoona, Pa. She was married to Jim McCauley, an actor, five years ago. Miss Thompson was married to Joseph McCarver, an electrician, in Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 19, 1919.

One theory is that the girls were attacked by men with whom they had gone on an automobile ride, and where they had been thrown from the car. Another theory is that they were murdered, perhaps from the cold.

Their companions, the police believe, returned about 9 o'clock Sunday morning to their automobile, and, finding the girls still lying there, they had been thrown from the machine, drove to the hotel and notified the police, then fled.

HARDING AGAIN QUILTS POINT ISABEL FOR BROWNSVILLE

Chooses to Travel by Automobile Rather Than Try Narrow Gauge Railroad Second Time.

ROUTE ACROSS PRAIRIE SELECTED

Motor Traffic Rendered Difficult by Rain Brought in by Cold Norther Past Few Days.

By the Associated Press.
POINT ISABEL, Tex., Nov. 15.—President-elect Harding departed for Brownsville by automobile today in another attempt to get away from the storm that has wrecked his vacation at this seaside resort. The rain brought in by the cold gulf norther of the past few days had rendered motor traffic difficult and almost precarious, but the President-elect chose that means of travel in preference to another try at the narrow-gauge railway on which he spent four hours yesterday without getting more than two miles outside of Point Isabel.

A train of automobiles to take Mr. Harding and his guests left Brownsville, 20 miles away, early in the day and arrived here shortly after noon. They departed soon afterward on the return trip which will be made by a roundabout route to avoid the worst spots in the direct road across the uninhabited stretch of prairie.

In Brownsville he is to meet Senator Fall of New Mexico, who was chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Mexican Affairs, and they are expected to talk over border conditions. Members of the President-elect's party say there is no special significance in the meeting. Fall is merely to make a call to pay his respects while the chief executive is in this part of the country.

Works on Speech.

During the morning Senator Harding did some more work on the speech he is to make at his arrival at New Orleans just before he sails on a voyage to Panama. He has not indicated what subjects he will discuss, but the economic possibilities of the South are expected to feature the address. He is expected to make a study of the general financial situation. It is known that he has watched stock market fluctuations with unusual interest, and is making a study of a possible remedy for threatening economic tendencies.

The adventures of the President-elect in his unsuccessful effort to get away from Point Isabel yesterday had many humorous and almost melodramatic touches. But both he and his guests bore their "fortunes good-naturedly."

It was early in the day that Senator Harding decided he no longer could hope to be comfortable in his little frame cottage overlooking Laguna Madre, apparently a special target for three days of the cold, wet gulf coast north wind. He decided to leave for Brownsville, but he abandoned that avenue of departure when he learned by telephone that some members of his party who started to motor in Saturday night had arrived after daylight and had walked almost all of the way. So he appealed to the narrow-gauge. It was an epochal but hectic day in the history of the Rio Grande yesterday. Hauling Presidents is not its specialty, for ordinarily its train makes but one trip to Point Isabel and back, bringing hot mail and provisions during the morning and taking in a load of fish late in the day. It usually moves leisurely, two or three hours being given over by the Mexican train crew to a safe and sane journey over the 20 miles.

But yesterday it taxed its facilities to accommodate the motor party of 35. Railway officials decided to supply two trains, and one of them came out before noon and sidetracked in the patio waiting for orders. The other was not so fortunate. Half way out it was derailed and at 2 o'clock, the hour fixed for departure, the second train was not yet in sight, nor was there any word from it.

Like Small Street Car.

The President-elect and several guests were on board and the driver, impatient, cranked up his engine and started. The train consisted of the motor, an old-style narrow-gauge baggage car and a passenger coach of similar proportions having general characterizations of a small-town street car.

The train ran lengthwise instead of across the car, and a small stove in the center of the aisles vomited smoke and sparks as it battled valiantly against the cold wind. But its work was woefully handicapped.

BRITONS TO AVOID TAXES BY LIVING ON TROPICAL ISLAND

Party of 40 to Sail for South Seas This Month; 1000 More Want to Go.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 15.—A party of 40 enthusiastic adventurers headed by F. E. Rhodes Disler, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, have decided to spend the rest of their lives on a tropical island, away from excessive taxation. They will leave for the South Seas this month in a schooner yacht, the Medora.

"More than 1000 people have asked to come with us," said Disler. "Our first party includes doctors, solicitors, ex-officers, surveyors, engineers, wireless operator and a clergyman. Several of the party are taking their wives and families with them."

"Until we have secured an island or a portion of one and fitted it up temporarily we shall live in our vessel. One strict rule is that the only shall have no politics," Disler added.

GOVERNMENT ASKS COURT TO SET NEWBERRY CASE FOR JAN. 3

Request Conferred in by Charles E. Hughes, Counsel for U. S. Senator.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Government today requested the Supreme Court to set next Jan. 3 for hearing arguments in the appeal brought by Senator Truman H. Newberry and 16 others from convictions on charges of conspiracy to violate election laws. The Government's request is based on the fact that the election in Michigan, in which Newberry was defeated, was held in July. The Government argues that the case should be heard before the election results are finalized.

$16,000 CIGAR BILL AT SPA CONFERENCE UNPAID

Belgium Presents Statement to the League of Nations, Which Refused to Assume Debt.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Belgian Government has just presented to the League of Nations a bill for clearing up the $16,000 bill for cigars consumed at the Spa Conference. The bill says: "These cigars were smoked or carried off by members of the various delegations at the Spa Conference. That conference, which was held in July, was attended by members of the Supreme Council and representatives of the German Government."

The Belgian Government argues that the Spa Conference formed part of the operations of the League of Nations. The bill remains unpaid.

WILSON DIRECTS U. S. COURSE IN COMMUNICATIONS MEETING

Has Had Frequent Conferences With Undersecretary Davis Regarding Convention.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Wilson has taken personal direction of the major American policies to be adopted with regard to matters before the International Communications Conference now in session at Geneva.

Undersecretary Davis of the State Department, chairman of the American communications to the conference, has been in frequent consultation with the President since the convening of the conference.

The President's interest in the subjects before the communications conference is known to have been inspired by the discussions in Paris at meetings of the council of five the disposition of the German cables and other matters relating to international agreements on communications.

Gasoline Price Down in 9 States.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Tank wagon prices of gasoline will be reduced one cent a gallon today in States in which the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana operates. It is announced by Walter C. Teagle, president of the New Jersey company. States in which the reduction will be effective include New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, District of Columbia, Louisiana, Tennessee and Arkansas.

Freezing Temperature in Texas.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—There was freezing temperature today as far south as Central Texas and very early in parts of Wyoming and Eastern Montana, said reports to the Weather Bureau. A disturbance now over the East Gulf of Mexico was expected to advance northward within the next 36 hours.

PAUL HYMANS OF BELGIUM ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Action at First Session of Assembly, Opening of Which Is Announced by Ringing of Church Bells of Geneva, Where Work Is Begun in Hall of Reformation.

PROBLEMS TO BE MET WITH OPEN MIND

United States, While Not Being Represented Officially, Will Have Observers to Report on Activities of Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Nov. 15.—Paul Hymans of Belgium was elected president of the League of Nations by the Assembly of the league at its first session here today. He received 35 out of 41 votes. M. Hymans is a former Foreign Minister of Belgium and head of the Belgian delegation in the Assembly of the league.

Opening of the Assembly was announced at 11 o'clock this morning by the ringing of all the church bells in Geneva.

Just before that hour a procession made up of Swiss officials marched from the city hall to the hall of Reformation, where the delegates were assembling for the session. The parade marched through streets decked with the flags of virtually all the nations of the world except Germany, Austria and Turkey.

Never before in the history of the world, it is believed, had the flags of so many nations flown together. Only a few American flags were noted among the colors displayed. The Swiss national and cantonal emblems predominated in the decorations.

Many Intricate Problems.

Determination to meet intricate problems in world affairs and to lay the found of a new era of peace and cooperation was evident in the demeanor of delegates of all countries when they convened.

Although differences of opinion have already arisen relative to the League of Nations, the commission on mandates, the protection of racial and religious minorities in Balkan states and the admission of Germany to the league with some of her former allies, there was today an evident disposition on the part of all the delegates to meet every situation with fairness and open mind and to endeavor to reach decisions which would be acceptable to all.

Men who have been long prominent in the arena of world politics were present when Paul Hymans, temporary president and former Belgian Foreign Minister, called the meeting to order. A. J. Balfour, head of the British delegation, was not able to be present.

South Africa was represented by Lord Robert Cecil, former British Assistant Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Lord Robert was one of the leading proponents of the league during the Versailles peace conference, but was not selected by Premier Lloyd George as one of Great Britain's representatives. The action of the Union of South Africa in naming him to act in behalf of the most interesting developments of the work preliminary to the meeting of the Assembly.

Most of the South and Central American republics have full delegations in the session.

The United States was not represented officially at today's meeting but throughout the session there will be present American "observers," who will keep Washington fully informed of developments. At a meeting of the Council of the league yesterday, arrangements were made for the United States to have a representative on the Financial Commission, as well as the commission on economics and mandates, should she so desire. Honduras and Ecuador are the only other American nations which did not send delegates to the meeting of the Assembly.

Election of a permanent president and several vice presidents and the appointment of committees was the first work to be disposed of by the Assembly. It is believed the adjournment will not be taken for three or four weeks.

A definite system of disarmament and a plan for using the economic blockade against nations that transgress the orders of the league will be among the principal subjects discussed. In addition, the plan for an international court which was framed at Brussels during last summer will receive attention. The Russian situation may be brought before the meeting, the delegates are expected to discuss.

SEBASTOPOL OCCUPIED BY BOLSHEVIKI AFTER WRANGLER EVACUATES IT

1919 Death Rate in U. S. Registration Area Lowest on Record

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The 1919 death rate in the death registration area of continental United States, embracing 81 per cent of the total population, was shown in statistics made public today by the Census Bureau, to be the lowest ever recorded. The rate of 12.9 per 1000 of population showed a drop of 5.1 per 1000 from the unusually high rate of 1918, resulting from the epidemic of influenza.

The total number of deaths in 1919 was 1,096,438, of which 111,551, or 10.2 per cent, were caused by heart disease, while tuberculosis resulted in 106,985, or 9.8 per cent. Deaths attributed to pneumonia totaled 105,218; influenza 84,113; nephritis and Bright's disease, 75,005; and cancer and other malignant tumors, 68,551.

Three states—Delaware, Florida and Mississippi—were added to the registration area in 1919, making a total of 35 states, the District of Columbia and 18 registration cities in nonregistration states in the area.

Wrangel, it is stated, was the last to leave, going aboard the cruiser Korniloff, cheered by his troops.

DETROIT CAN GO ON WITH PLAN FOR CITY-OWNED STREET CAR

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Allow Injunction; Hearing Set for Jan. 3.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Supreme Court today refused to permit an injunction to issue prohibiting the city of Detroit from continuing the preparations already started looking for the acquisition of municipally-owned street railway facilities.

At the same time the court set Jan. 3, next, for hearing argument on the suit brought by the Detroit United Railways to prevent the city of Detroit from carrying out its plan for the purchase of certain street railway lines.

FARMER IN JAIL FOR FAILING TO SEND CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

Wisconsin Man Says He Is Happy to "Show Up Rottenness of Rural School Laws."

By the Associated Press.
MARINETTE, Wis., Nov. 15.—Albert Karry, a farmer of Talbot, Mich., is serving a 15-day sentence in the county jail, following his refusal to send his children a distance of three miles to school.

Karry maintains that transportation should be furnished by the School Board, and adds that he is happy to go to jail to show up the rottenness of the State rural school laws.

HENRY ZIEGENHEIN FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

Henry Ziegenhein, son of a former Mayor of St. Louis, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court today, giving his liabilities as $11,270.60, and his assets as $90, of which $15 was listed as cash. He names 64 creditors, most of the debts being small.

Among the debts listed is a florist's bill for $85.50. The creditors include cleaning and pressing establishments, butchers, grocers, physicians and many other firms of the sort that extend credit to householders. The largest obligation is a note for $400, held by the Lafayette Bank. Another is a judgment for $2311.81, held by Anna L. Walker. Still another is a tax bill of $650.99, due the city.

Ziegenhein gave his occupation as salesman.

CONVENTION OF AMERICAN INDIANS TO OPEN TONIGHT

First Business Session Tomorrow of Representatives of 320,000 Indians of United States.

The ninth annual convention of the Society of American Indians, which will open tonight with a reception for the delegates at the Planters' Hotel, promises to be the most important convention ever held by the association, according to President Thomas L. Sloan. The existence of the Indian race, which has shown a rapid decrease in the last few years, depends on quick action on the part of the Government, he said.

"The sentiment of the Indians toward Government control of their tribes will be voiced strongly at the convention," he added, "and it is hoped that the opinions of many prominent Indians will have much bearing on the future policy of the Government in Indian matters."

The delegates, who will represent the 320,000 Indians of the United States at the convention, began registering this morning, although most of them will not arrive until tonight, as the business sessions do not begin until tomorrow morning.

300 Delegates Expected.

Sixty delegates registered this morning, and it is expected that when the first business meeting opens tomorrow morning 300 will be in attendance, representing practically all of the 200 North American tribes. The 200 tribes are branches of the three great tribes:
the Algonquin, which the Pilgrim fathers first came in contact with on the Atlantic Coast; the Siouan, of the Middle West; and the Shoshoni, of the Rocky Mountains and the West.

The Rev. Sherman Coolidge of Denver, Colo., one of the prominent arrivals this morning, who served as a missionary for 26 years among the Black Feet and Arapaho tribes in Wyoming and Montana, in speaking of the conditions existing among many Indian tribes, declared that the Black Feet are rapidly becoming extinct.

The tribe, at one time one of the largest in America, now numbers only about 2700, including many adopted half-breeds, he said.

"The Black Feet, the most typical and best of American Indians, after 30 years of oppression and subjection on a Government reservation, are starving," he continued. "The tribe is in a very destitute condition, due principally to droughts of the last few years and mismanagement by incompetent officials representing the Government."

"The death rate last year was appalling, and this year it appears that it will be even greater. It is a crime that our finest tribe should be forced to live in such a cold and bleak country."

"Unless the Government takes ample steps to provide for the tribe this winter, several hundred will die of starvation. They are practically penniless. Last year all their horses and stock died off for lack of sustenance. They raised nothing to sell, so that they could buy food. The members of the tribe are in such a weakened physical condition that disease readily takes hold on them.
Tuberculosis is steadily increasing."

System of Control Blamed.

"The Government system of control over reservations is in a great measure responsible for the conditions among the Black Feet and many other tribes. The reservation Indians throughout the United States have been half starved, being given only half the ration necessary. Incompetent control of the reservation and the Indian bureau is hindering the Indian in advancement and educational opportunities."

"There have been cases where persons have swindled the Indians out of fortunes without any seeming activity on the part of the government officials to put a stop to it.
The Crows, in Montana, at one time were a wealthy tribe. There were few in the tribe who did not have enough money and property for their sustenance the remainder of their lives. But they have been swindled out of all this and now they are in a state of destitution almost as bad as the Blackfeet."

"Their death rate has not been so pronounced up to the present time, but unless conditions are remedied, the tribe, like the Blackfeet, will be extinct in a few years. The Crows at present number approximately 1700."

President Sloan, who has spent much time in Washington, D. C., in the interest of the Indians, in corroborating Coolidge's statements, pointed out several specific instances of mistreatment of the Indians under the present reservation system.

Among those expected to arrive before the business meeting tomorrow morning is Dr. Carlos Montezuma, one of the greatest stomach specialists in the United States. He is an Apache, and was stolen from his tribe when a boy by Pima scouts and sold to a photographer for $10.

After several years with Buffalo Bill's show the photographer had leaving the boy alone in the world.
He blacked shoes and finally went to work in a drug store. He worked his way through college, studying medicine. He will be one of the speakers.

The reception for the delegates tonight at the Planters Hotel will be given by the Missouri Historical Society, the St. Louis Academy of Science, the St. Louis Naturalists' Club, the St. Louis Anthropological Society, the St. Louis Society of the Archaeological Institute of America and the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau. Mayor Kiel will deliver the address of welcome.

WOMEN'S EXPOSITION OPENS THIS EVENING

Mayor Kiel and Rabbi Harrison to Speak at Formal Exercises at Coliseum at 8 P. M.

The formal opening of the Women's Exposition at the Coliseum will be at 8 o'clock this evening, following the opening of the doors at 2 p. m. Mayor Kiel and Rabbi Harrison will speak. The Rev. John MacIvor will give the invocation.

Piepp's hand will give a concert and the Women's Exposition chorus of 100 voices will sing. The society movies and the movie fashion show will be given. On the platform will be amusements under the direction of the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and the Church Federation. From 7 to 7:30 there will be hatmaking by the Y. W. C. A. girls and typewriting and domestic science demonstrations. At 7:40 the Ukulele Club of the Y. W. Industrial Center will give a concert and at 8:15 a gymnastic exhibition will be given by the Y. M. C. A. At 9 o'clock there will be a play by girls of the Maple Avenue M. E. Church.

The exposition is given by women of 100 Protestant and Jewish churches and philanthropic organizations.

Work to Be Demonstrated.
More than 1000 persons will serve at the booth, contracted for by the Church Federation of St. Louis and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., where a continual demonstration of the work of the churches of St. Louis and the two allied organizations will be given throughout the week. This will be the largest number taking part in any activity of the exposition.

The church exhibit will be under the direction of a joint committee, of which Mrs. W. A. McCandless, 5056 Westminster place, is chairman. The program used for the week will be "The Church as a community builder and a model of life." The persons joining in the demonstration work will be teachers and pupils from Sunday schools, church leaders and members, workers and members of the "Y" and "Y. W." organizations, physical work done, with gymnasium exhibits, contests, and will give educational demonstrations.

The federation will distribute literature and give information of its work, and will have plays, kindergarten work, demonstrations of industrial and community work by the churches. Moving pictures will also be shown.

Those Taking Part.
Among the churches and organizations taking part are: Baptist schools, Maple Avenue Methodist, Holy Communion Episcopal, Christ Church Cathedral, Wesley House, Boyle Center and Greer Memorial Presbyterian, Markham Memorial Presbyterian, Cabanne Methodist, West and King's high-way Presbyterian.

Mothers can park their children at the exposition while they see the sights. It was announced this morning Park Commissioner Pape has installed a free playground for the children in the basement, which will be in charge of Miss Sarah Wolf, supervisor of community centers in the city. She will be assisted by a corps of volunteer women from the various churches every day. Sandboxes, swings and slides have been installed, and in addition every afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock free movies will be given, when Booth Washington's stories and other special feature for children will be shown.

Social Items

The marriage of Miss Louise Breeding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Breeding of the Planters Hotel, to David Hugh Latimer of Shaw, Miss., was solemnized at noon today at the Centenary Church, the Rev. C. W. Tadlock officiating. Only the members of the families and a few close friends were present. There were no attendants. The couple departed immediately after the ceremony for Mississippi where they will reside. The bride was educated at Lenox Hall and Washington University and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Mr. Latimer is a native of Texas.

Miss Helen Voight of 4250 Maryland avenue was hostess at a tea yesterday afternoon at her home in compliment to Misses Ellacita and Josephine Thatcher of Portland, Ore.

Mrs. James McNaughton Jr. of 4418 Forest Park boulevard will entertain Wednesday at her home with a bridge luncheon for 12 guests in honor of Miss Irma Bryant whose marriage to Harrison Way Barton of Kansas City will take place Dec. 2. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. George Dodson at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas G. Bryant, 2110 Halliday avenue, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

Mrs. John N. Cornatzer of 6535 Waterman avenue and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Cornatzer, will depart the last of the week for New York and Washington to be gone a few days. Miss Cornatzer's marriage to Brooks Thompson will take place Jan. 4.

The wedding of Miss Stella Grone and Edwin C. Sanders will take place at 11 o'clock Wednesday at the College Church. Mrs. Henry Grone will be matron of honor, Miss Florence Warner, maid of honor. And the bridesmaids will be Misses Annabell Vaughn of Texas, Anna, June Curran, Mildred Hadley and Augusta Erker. Mr. Sanders will be attended by his brother, Clarence Sanders, as best man and the groomsmen will be Henry Grone.

We Are Down to "Brass Tacks" on Player-Piano Prices

EVERYBODY needs the kind of home entertainment that only a Player-Piano can give. But wise folks want a real money's worth these days. Especially on a life-time purchase like a Player-Piano. We want to tell you how we have got our prices down to "Brass Tacks"—why we are offering values not to be equalled.

We have consulted a score of piano factories on getting down to "Brass Tacks." We know the rock bottom price of every important maker—and what kind of quality it buys. We determined to offer a high grade instrument on a "Brass Tacks" basis. And you can rest assured we know we are right when we say the best thing in America is—

The Lowest-Priced Gulbransen

Here is the only low priced Player-Piano we know which is mostly made to be high priced. It is built in the Gulbransen factory devoted mostly to high priced player-pianos. Many important parts of this Lowest-Priced Gulbransen are exactly the same as in the highest priced Gulbransen. We know of no other Player-Piano, of even moderate price, of which this is true. Yet it is true of this Gulbransen and the price is only $595.

Take a look in our window. There you will see the Lowest-Priced Gulbransen standing beside the highest priced Gulbransen. One is the "millionaires" model at $750. The other is "Brass Tacks" in Player-Piano value at $595. See if you can tell by looking which is which. Come in and play them both. You will find they are both Gulbransen quality. The differences are in things not vital to you.

THIS WEEK we are showing a special selection of specially handsome cases of the Lowest-Priced Gulbransen—genuine Mahogany, Burl Walnut, three kinds of Oak, satin and mirror-polish finishes—chosen for this "Brass Tacks" Sale.

TODAY AND TOMORROW we are demonstrating the famous Martin Method instruction rolls, prepared for the Gulbransen Player by John Martin, the concert player-pianist. These rolls show you how your playing of the Gulbransen can be made to sound like expert hand-playing—and it's easy! Come and hear.

Easy to Play

You've heard of the Gulbransen. Everybody knows the little Baby at the Pedals. But perhaps you don't know the Baby is something more than a trade mark. It is the picture of an incident that has happened in thousands of homes—a suggestion of the outstanding quality of the Gulbransen—"Easy to Play."

The moment your feet touch the pedals of this amazing instrument you realize you are playing a different sort of player-piano from any you ever played before. It just gets into sympathy with you, helps you, inspires you to play like a true musician. You do not have to pump hard or pedal fast. Gulbransen exquisite "pedal touch" is so delightfully restful, yet you can "just make this piano talk," it is so responsive.

With the Martin Method Instruction Rolls developed exclusively for Gulbransen owners you can readily learn to command the entire musical resources of the piano. Mr. Martin has played before musical authorities who invariably pronounce his playing indistinguishable from that of an accomplished hand performer. The Martin Method teaches you everything Mr. Martin knows about player-piano musicianship. Free with every Gulbransen.

"Good Times with Your Gulbransen" is the title of a book that we give to every Gulbransen owner to help in home entertaining and music study. Tells every kind of music available, what is best and most interesting, shows how to understand and appreciate music.

Nationally Priced

Think a minute. You realize that ability to give best value depends on big volume and small profits. The Gulbransen is the product of the greatest player-piano factory in the world—making nothing but Player-Pianos, under only one name, and with a capacity of 30,000 instruments annually. Quality standardization has been kept up as in no other factory. And to secure volume, "Brass Tacks" price standardization is a fixed policy. Gulbransen prices must be on a "Brass Tacks" basis because they compete with all sorts of player-pianos at all sorts of prices all over the U. S. This is the final proof that we give you best value.

Three models, all playable by hand and by roll, sold at the same prices to everybody everywhere in the U. S., freight and war tax paid.

REPELLANT MOTHER IN NEW HART FILM

Wallace Reid Has Two Roles in "Always Audacious" and Liberty Melodrama Is Thrilling.

A crook drama with one outstanding objectionable feature is "The Cradle of Courage," with William S. Hart in the leading role, which opened for a week's run at the new Missouri Theater yesterday. It would be impossible to imagine a more faring note than that of the mother who, upon her son's return from the Great War, sees in his coming only the opportunity for him to go back to work as a burglar. With motherly care she has kept his burglar tools untarnished and when he refuses to use them she disowns him and drives him from the house. There may have been war mothers like that, but they are not the sort we like to think about or to see exploited for public entertainment. The returned soldier is named Kelly.

In carrying out his determination to "go straight" Kelly joins the police force and runs down the gang of which he had been the leader. Incidentally he kills the new leader and wins the hand of Rose, the new leader's adopted daughter, who at one time had been hand in glove with the gang, but had miraculously retained her innocence. All of which does not make ideal entertainment for impressionable youths. The bill also includes "Get Out and Get Under," which is a most amusing Harold Lloyd comedy, a scenic feature and a news weekly.

"Always Audacious."

Wallace Reid is at his best in a double role in "Always Audacious," which opened yesterday for a week's run at the Delmonte Theater. This is a story of mixed identity based on a fascinating yarn by Ben Ames Williams. Perry Danton is a millionaire. "Slim" Attucks is a designing villain who sets out to make capital of his physical resemblance to Danton. Attucks has Danton shanghaied and placed aboard a tramp steamer bound for Honolulu. Then he steps into Danton's place, even going so far as to make love to his sweetheart.

After many adventures and hardships, which are thoroughly exploited in the picture, Danton returns to find the villain so thoroughly entrenched in his place that he has great difficulty in proving his own identity. The action is swift and the interest is well sustained.

"The Face at Your Window."

Those who like thrilling melodrama, realism and mob scenes will enjoy a lurid hour or more in viewing "The Face at Your Window" at the Liberty. Gina Kelly, a French movie star has the leading role. The story is an attempt to forecast what would happen if industrial unrest should reach the stage of revolution in the United States. It is a rather ticklish subject, but well handled, the answer to the question as to what would happen being that the American Legion would rise as one man and wipe out the disturbers. The picture shows them doing this in a factory town. The war-created city of Boonton, N. J., was used as a "location" in making the picture. There also are a Chester Conkling comedy and another installment of "Bride 13."

Arsene Lupin, the famous French fiction detective, darts here and there across the silver sheet of the West End Lyric to a mystifying drama called "S13." This is one of those plays in which a murder has been done and the plot is so constructed that as it unfolds, suspicion falls in turn on every person in the cast, not excluding even the great detective himself. But, voila! He foils them all. It is a good detective film with something happening all the time. Several interesting short features also are on the bill. Katherine MacDonald, notable for her beauty, has a good medium for her talents in "Curtain," which opened at the New Grand Central Theater yesterday. It is the story of an actress who forsakes her art to marry and finds that she has made a mistaken alliance. Instead of being crushed by her unhappy experience she returns to the stage and achieves a success of which she had never dreamed, partly as a result of the humanizing influence of that experience. The New Grand Central will be dark Friday in preparation for the unveiling of the new decorations Saturday.

At the Kings a four-day feature is "It's a Great Life," a screen adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart juvenile story. It pictures the seeming realization of the dreams of two adventurous boys whose imagination carries them to far-off islands inhabited by cannibals. Bryant Washburn in "Burglar Proof" opens today at the Pershing. "In the Heart of a Fool" opened its second week yesterday at the Central.

VAUDEVILLE BOOKING MERGER

200 Cities Are Affected by Affiliation of Two Exchanges.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 15.—Announcement of an affiliation of vaudeville booking interests stretching from coast to coast and involving more than 200 of the leading cities of the country, is made here from the general executive offices of the Gus Sun Booking Exchange.

The affiliation, which is to run for 10 years, brings together under a working agreement the Gus Sun Booking Exchange of New York, Chicago and Springfield, serving more than 100 cities; the Consolidated Amusement Co. of Kansas City, serving 30 cities; the Bert Levey Association of San Francisco, serving more than 25 cities along the Pacific coast; the Bert Christy Circuit of Salt Lake City, serving more than 20 cities; and the Keith-Burns Circuit, formerly the Sullivan-on-sidine Circuit, of Seattle, Wash., serving more than 35 cities.

"APHRODITE" REFORMS FOR ST. LOUIS VISIT

Some Expurgations Noted in Alexandrian Spectacle to Play at Shubert Theater.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

MORE tender of public prudency in St. Louis than in Chicago and Cleveland, to say nothing of New York, "Aphrodite," a spectacle-drama of "manners in ancient Alexandria," proved, on its arrival last night at the Shubert-Jefferson, to have been measurably expurgated in dialogue, costume and dance. Several changes in personnel, not always to the advantage of the cast, have been made since the original production at the Century Theater in New York; one conspicuous substitution, that of Pauline Armitage for Dorothy Dalton, has occurred since the Cleveland engagement of a few weeks ago. Planned according to dimensions of spacious pageantry, the show was pared down after it left the Hippodrome in Cleveland; and yet it was visibly cramped in the confines of the Twelfth street playhouse.

For these reasons, it will not be easy for those who see only the local production to form a correct notion of the value of the original work. There are more intrinsic factors, however, which give rise to the suspicion that of the four spectacles staged by Morris Gest, the weakest is "Aphrodite." It is so poorly constructed that a long and dull first act is required to establish a few facts that could be compressed into a paragraph. Its text is of the sort that fancies distinction is obtained by a lavish use of "thou" and "thee."

Brummagem Proficiency.

Wholly absent is the poetry, the lyricism of atmosphere, which transfigured "Chu Chin Chow" into so radiant an entertainment, despite its evanescent plot. If anyone has been fed, by such writings as Flaubert's "Salambo," upon illusions as to the refinement and glamor of ancient vice, he may purge himself by attending "Aphrodite." Here he will find unimaginative dissoluteness, phoney profanity, worded with the wit of the colloquies of Fokine, shadowing forth the occult depravities of scabrous votaries in the Temple of Venus.

Lacking also is the tragic sincerity of "The Wanderer," largely because of a cast which, set to interpret a powerful and sinister plot, would be hard put to it to hold a place in John Kellard's itinerant troupe of Shakespearean tragedians. Assuredly, among the principals in "The Wanderer," place was found for the late James O'Neill and Nance O'Neill. There is no one in "Aphrodite" cast to compare even with Lionel Braham and Marjorie Woods in "Chu Chin Chow."

Tedious First Act.

In colorfulness of garb and setting, it would seem from all reports that "Aphrodite" has been surpassed by the newest Gest production, Oscar Asche's "Mecca." One may go so far as to assert that, despite individual costumes of gorgeous munificence, there is no mass display of attire so blindingly beautiful as the memorable fashion bazaar in "Chu Chin Chow." The climactic scene, "The Feast of Bacchys," seems coarse and brutal in comparison with the sumptuous eroticism of the banquet in "The Wanderer." But some of the settings in "Aphrodite" are more dazzling than anything presented in "Chu Chin Chow" and "The Wanderer," while others, due partly to lack of space, appear commonplace.

There is the opening scene of the port of Alexandria, in 56 B. C., with its shipping, its azure sea and its lighthouse in the distance. The stage is soon thronged with what appear to be hundreds of courtiers, sailors, girls and slaves, but the entire lavish ensemble is devoted for half an hour to a long-winded exposition of the following situation: Demetrios, a Greek sculptor, is the master of Egypt because he is adored by the petulant child-queen, Berenice; he refuses her love, since he has conceived an "ideal" passion for his own statue of Aphrodite, which is the wonder of the Temple of Venus; he forgets his marble immortality, however, when he encounters Chrysis, the most notorious courtesan in Egypt; and in a sudden fit of infatuation takes an oath to commit three crimes for her sake—theft, to obtain the Rhodope mirror which once belonged to Sappho and is now the property of Bacchys, queen of the scarlet world of Alexandria; murder, to seize the ivory comb of the high priestess, Nount; and sacrilege, to steal the sacred pearls from the uplifted hands of the statue of Aphrodite.

Next we are in the Grove of Aphrodite, a magnificent scene of great trees, a pool and a classic temple in the background. Here the girls devoted to the service of the goddess have their booths, entertain their lovers, exchange pleasantries of rather futile nastiness and watch one of their number do a quite respectable dance. An aged crone mouths dire prophecies at Chrysis. If Demetrios was able to desert the pretty and graceful Queen of Patricia O'Connor, one wonders still more, as the scene in the interior of the temple is revealed, that he can persuade himself still later to forsake Chrysis for such an Aphrodite. For here, on a pedestal, stands his wondrous statue—a scrawny young woman in a union suit with soiled knees, her arms above her head, with the wrists bent inwards at right angles, in an oblong posture which would have made any Greek sculptor shudder to the marrow. Demetrios, with many grimaces and moans for the registration of mingled remorse and desperation, deftly inserts a knife into the breast of the high priestess and steals her comb; then, with more grimaces and louder moans, he snatches the pearls from the hands of the statue. Then the revelers are seen on their way to the feast of Bacchys, their litters having considerable trouble negotiating the strait and narrow passages at the front of the stage, but all, including a gromedary and two horses, finally breaking their way through. Next, we are at the feast itself—in an apartment of evil red, round the walls of which men and women are too thickly thronged. Dancing girls lie strewn on the floor in the midst of rose leaves; they awaken one by one and dash into the Fokine ballet, the beauty of which is marred by ramped space. Evidently at its best, this performance was worthy of the Russian Ballet itself, despite the depravity of motive upon which its loveliness is threaded. The feast consists of a roasted swan, from the breast of which the revelers help themselves to imaginary morsels, in the manner of the immortal Harmecide. There are lots of wine cups, more rakish conversation and an ungrudging display of epidermis. Aphrodasia, a slave

WOOD FIRE AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN WEBSTER GROVES

Overheated Furnace in Basement Starts Blaze Which Destroys Pews.

Overheated furnace in the basement of the Webster Groves Christian Church, Bompert and Tuxedo avenues, set fire to a wooden partition and caused $5000 damage.

The janitor was hurrying to get the building heated in time for Sunday school. The flames went through the floor of the church, destroyed several pews and damaged a number of the wooden rafters.

Fire Chief Frank Lenz said the loss was covered by insurance. The church is of rock construction, erected 10 years ago at a cost of $50,000.

WOMAN WHO KILLED HER HUSBAND DIES

She Said After Shooting in Office That He Had Lost Interest in Her, Due to Illness.

Mrs. Corleen Kelly, 28 years old formerly of 4700 Vernon avenue, who, on April 22 last, shot and killed her husband, Walter G. Kelly, 27 years old, in a twelfth-floor corridor of the Boatmen's Bank Building, died at the city hospital yesterday of cancer, from which she had suffered for some time.

Mrs. Kelly, at the time of the shooting, said that her husband, who was a station passenger agent of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, was devoting his attentions to another woman, and that that was the reason she shot him. She had undergone five major operations for her ailment, and she said her husband began to lose interest in her after the first of these. She was admitted to the city hospital on Sept. 2.

Was Under $15,000 Bond.

Mrs. Kelly was charged with murder and released on a $15,000 bond on April 28. She waived a preliminary hearing and was allowed bond because of her health.

Mrs. Kelly, after the killing, told the police that she had had to go to work last August because her husband neglected her. The day before she shot her husband she called on the other woman and asked her to "give up" Kelly. The woman suggested a meeting of the three. Mrs. Kelly said, in order to give Kelly opportunity to choose between them, but Mrs. Kelly refused to countenance this.

Mrs. Kelly then went to a department store and bought a revolver for $10. She went to her husband's office and asked him to come home. "No, I don't care enough for you," she said he replied. "I think more of the other woman." She left then and returned next day with a similar request. On his refusal, she said, she shot him. Kelly died almost instantly, four bullets having entered his body.

Mrs. Kelly formerly lived in Peoria, Ill., and after her release on bond she is said to have returned to her family there. Kelly came from Peoria, Ill.

Try It Again

You will like the new Troco

The fancy grade

Troco is now the fancy grade of nut margarin made by a famous butter expert in one of the finest food plants in the country.

The expert, Mr. A. E. Hoffman, has spent 30 years making and judging butter and teaching butter making.

He supervises every detail of the making, down to the selection of ingredients by rigorous tests.

The Troco flavor is developed just as it is in butter, under his personal supervision—it can't be done mechanically. This flavor made Mr. Hoffman famous in the butter world.

This perfected Troco is a real food delight and also a food essential.

Coconut fat—which in Troco replaces butter fat—and pasteurized milk are Nature's food standbys.

Standardized flavor

The wonderfully sweet, delicate flavor which Mr. Hoffman puts into Troco is standardized. It may cost a trifle more a pound, just as finest butter always brings a premium.

Ask your dealer. Have him order if necessary. You want Troco.

21 Years of Service to St. Louis

WE EXTEND a cordial invitation to visit and inspect our completed building on our Twenty-first Anniversary, which is tomorrow. Always having been identified with the growth and prosperity of our city, we dedicate our enlarged structure to the service of St. Louis and St. Louisans.

On November 16, 1899, the Mercantile Trust Company opened for business on the southeast corner of Eighth and Locust with less than 2500 square feet of floor space.

Tomorrow, November 16, 1920, we celebrate our

Twenty-first Anniversary

by opening a new addition which completes our building and gives us 96,831 square feet of floor space covering one-half of a city block. This is the largest building in the United States devoted solely to the business of one financial institution, and contains the largest safe deposit department in this country.

Diversified financial service, efficiently rendered, has caused our rapid growth. Today our patrons number more than 100,000. They, by their continued loyalty, have made possible the "Greater Mercantile Trust Company" as it stands today. This unqualified endorsement of our usefulness is worthy of your notice.

Ten departments, each a different branch of finance under the supervision of a managing head, experienced in his field, enable us to offer you a complete financial service.

Photograph Successfully Sent by Wire From St. Louis to New York in Post-Dispatch-New York World Demonstration

TRANSMISSION FROM THIS CITY ACHIEVED THROUGH FRENCH INVENTION

Picture Sent Yesterday in the New York World Today and Will Be Published Later in Post-Dispatch—None Received Here Clear.

MECHANISM IN USE ELSEWHERE

Thirty-Five Guests of Educational, Mechanical and Official Standing See Demonstration—Machine Called Teletereograph.

The first public demonstration in the United States of the long-distance transmission of photographs by wire, by means of Prof. Edouard Belin's teletereograph, was given yesterday afternoon in the Post-Dispatch and in the office of the New York World, 1650 miles away.

Thirty-five guests, of educational, technical and official standing, witnessed the demonstration in the Post-Dispatch office. They saw the sending of three photographs to New York, one of which was transmitted with sufficient clearness to be reproduced in this morning's World. They saw the receiving of photographs and script messages, sent from the World office, which, it proved, did not come with sufficient clearness to be reproduced in the Post-Dispatch.

The picture sent to New York and printed in today's World will be printed in the Post-Dispatch later, showing the success of the demonstration in this particular. The picture is that of Chief He-Dog, of the Sioux Indians, photographed recently in Washington.

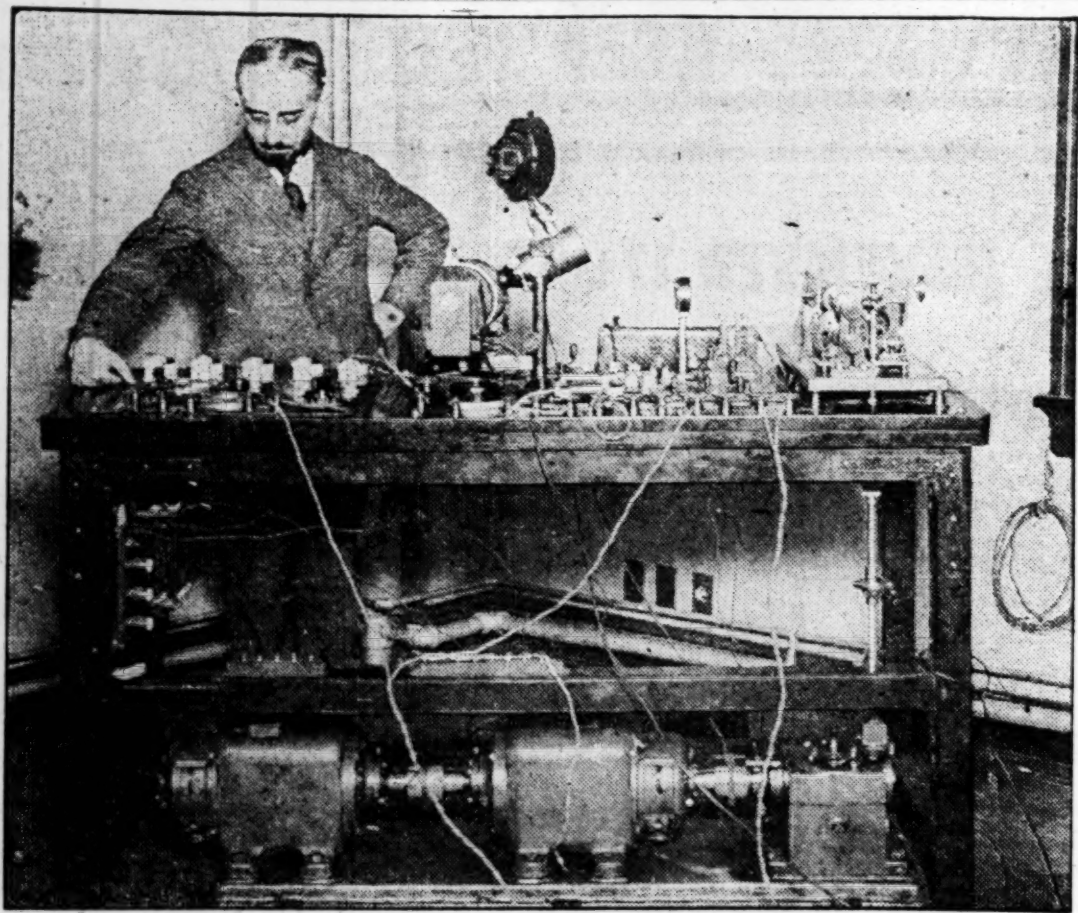

System in Use Elsewhere.
The interest shown by the guests in the demonstrations was not affected by the varying degrees of success attained. The guests were aware that the Belin mechanism has been successfully placed in use between Paris and other French cities, and between Antwerp and London. They realized the new problem involved in the first attempt to place in use, over more than 1600 miles of wire, under climatic conditions not the most favorable, Prof. Belin's delicate combination of the principles of the telephone, the camera and the phonograph, for the transmission of electrical impulses and their conversion into graduated rays of light.

So the spirit of the guests was one of confidence. There was no show of skepticism such as that which the work of Morse encountered in the years before he was, in 1844, to tick off between Baltimore and Washington his treasured "W-h-a-H-e-d-t-h-G-o-d-W-r-o-u-g-h-t." There was not even the element of doubt that was present when Glenn Curtiss, only 11 years ago this fall, gave St. Louis its first and halting demonstration of the modern airplane, in Forest Park.

Uses to Be Varied.
Instead, comment was plentiful and enthusiastic, and the practical possibilities of the invention, in business and in the administration of justice, as well as in newspaper illustration, were the theme of discussion. The guests' expressions indicated a belief that any present defects in operation will be remedied, and that the transmission of photographic and autographic matter by wire will soon become a daily activity.

Among the guests were Chancellor Hall of Washington University, President Robinson of St. Louis University, Prof. Francis E. Nipher, international authority on physical science, and retired member of the Washington University faculty; Prof. Upson of the department of electrical engineering, Washington University; Mayor Kiel and City Counselor Dues, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons, Mr. F. O. Hale, general manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone System; Maj. E. E. Harris, United States Army Engineer Corps; Marc Segur, French Consul, and the Rev. Father Hugo Stotemeyer, dean of the department of physical science, St. Louis University.

French Inventor and His Machine for Transmitting Photographs by Wire

M. EDOUARD BELIN AND THE TELETEREGRAPH.

Yesterday's demonstration began at 2 p. m., 3 o'clock New York time. A telegraph wire between the Post-Dispatch and the World furnished a means of communication between Prof. Belin, directing the demonstration in New York, and his assistant, Mr. Gaston Johanneau, who was in charge here.

Result of 17 Years' Work.
Prof. Belin, who is an eminent French electrical engineer, evolved the teletereograph from 17 years' work and study, before the outbreak of the war. The engraved nameplate on the mechanism which Prof. Belin installed in the Post-Dispatch office, week before last, bears the date of 1912. But for the war, which stopped his work, M. Belin's invention would probably be in general use now.

A table 64 inches long bears the sending apparatus, which is at one end, the receiving apparatus, which includes the sending apparatus and which fills the greater part of the table's length, and a series of switches, meters and indicators. A motor, beneath the table, supplies the power which turns the cylinder both in sending and receiving.

The process of sending photographic matter is carried on in full light and in open view. For receiving, the room is darkened, except for the hooded light of a miniature arc lamp which is part of the mechanism, and for the oscillating reflections cast upon the sensitized receiving cylinder which is within a light-proof container. The intermittent spark of a contact-breaker gives a stroboscopic effect in the semi-darkness.

Surface Variations Caught.
The photograph to be sent is transferred to the surface of a copper cylinder, by a process which renders that surface minutely uneven, a series of microscopic mountains and valleys. This copper cylinder is placed in revolution upon an apparatus like that of the old-fashioned cylindrical phonograph. A stylus, in constant contact with the face of the cylinder as it revolves and advances, transmits to a microphone disk the record of unevenness which it finds in the bas-relief photograph on the cylinder. The wire carries this record made by the stylus, in a series of electrical impulses of varying strength, to the receiving apparatus at the other end.

The sending process may be, as Prof. Belin declares, a simple one. But the receiving mechanism is calculated to cause the knitting of brows, even when the brows are those of men versed in physical science.

The electrical impulses received from the sending end are translated, at the receiving end, into flashes of light reflected from a tiny silver mirror. This mirror, so suspended by tenuous wires as to oscillate (in popular phrase, wiggle and wobble) with the varying degrees of the reflected, casts its reflections, through a series of lenses and a glass screen of varying transparency, to the pinpoint opening through which it reaches the sensitized cylinder, moving within its container at exactly the same rate of speed as the cylinder of the sending apparatus. The impressions made by the light flashes of varying intensity, upon the sensitized surface of the cylinder, transfer that surface into a photograph, in a dark room, can be removed, printed and reproduced by the half-tono process in the usual way.

When the receiving cylinder had been taken to the photographic department, and the lights were turned on again in the room where the guests were gathered, a message over the telegraph wire announced, that the large picture had been received in New York with partial success. As developed at the New York end, the picture had been fairly distinct in the middle, but faint about the edges.

Script Message Transmitted.
An explanation of the process, made by a member of the Post-Dispatch staff, preceded the first stage of the demonstration. The guests viewed a cylindrical reproduction of a photograph of Mayor Kiel, which had been made an hour before, showing the Mayor with his hand on a switch, in the act of starting the apparatus. This was ready for transmission, but it was not sent at this time, as Prof. Belin, at the New York end, elected to send first, from that end, a script message to be received here. For the receipt of this message, the room was darkened.

The script message had not been photographed for sending, but had been written with embossing ink on a small scroll which was placed about the cylinder of the sending apparatus in New York. This part of the experiment, it appeared later, did not turn out well. The receiving process, which lasted 9 minutes, was followed by the examination, in the photographic dark room on another floor of the Post-Dispatch building, of the contents of the cylinder. It was found that the record was not clear enough to be distinguished.

Later in the afternoon, the script message was sent from New York again, and was received with sufficient distinctness to be deciphered in the negative, but not with the clearness required for reproduction. In the photographic dark room after the second trial, the negative showed the written words:

Consultations from the New York World to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

RALPH PULITZER.
To the spectators, and even to those with the most intimate knowledge of the working of the instrument, one attempt at receiving looks like another, and success or failure is not determined until the acid test of the photographic dark room is applied to the product.

Photographs Exchanged.
Following the first, and as it proved unsuccessful, attempt to receive the message from New York, the sending of a picture to New York was undertaken. The first picture was one of the self-propelled barges, Birmingham, of the Mississippi-Warrior freight service, on the river front.

This picture appeared to be well adapted to the purpose, as it was in quite marked relief. Its sending took nine minutes, and during this time, the room now being lighted, the guests left their chairs and surrounded the table, watching the contact of the stylus with the revolving picture, and listening to the faint whine of the microphone disk, which, unless one bends an ear to it, is drowned by the sound of the motor which turns the cylinder.

New York then announced that a photograph was to come, and the room was again darkened. For nine and one-half minutes, the succession of refractions from the tiny silver mirror played upon the even more tiny aperture of the container.

When the receiving cylinder had been taken to the photographic department, and the lights were turned on again in the room where the guests were gathered, a message over the telegraph wire announced, that the large picture had been received in New York with partial success. As developed at the New York end, the picture had been fairly distinct in the middle, but faint about the edges.

Football Picture Received.
Another picture, in even more pronounced relief than that of the football game, was the photograph of the Indian chief, and this was sent from the St. Louis end. In the meantime, the photographer's test upstairs showed that the picture received from New York was that of a football game, presumably the Yale-Princeton contest at Princeton Saturday. Football pictures, especially if made late in the afternoon, are not always clear, and this picture, as received, showed human forms and the outline of the grandstand, but was not distinct in detail.

Mayor Kiel's picture, having been placed on the sending cylinder more recently than the others, gave trouble when an attempt was made to send it. The stylus tore a part of the film from the cylinder, and another cylinder, hurriedly prepared, met the same fate, so that it was not possible, as had been intended, to show to New York readers of this morning's World the picture of the Mayor of St. Louis starting the Belin apparatus here.

Barge Picture Repeated.
Subsequently, and after most of the guests had left, the large picture was sent again from this end, at the request of Prof. Belin, and the congratulatory message from the World to the Post-Dispatch was sent for the second time, and was received and deciphered at this end. The last use of the apparatus was in the sending, from New York, of a picture of the New York city hall neighborhood, showing the Woolworth Building and the Hall of Records. The outlines of these buildings could be seen clearly on the negative, but the resulting print was not distinct enough for newspaper reproduction.

Messages from Gov. Gardner to the Governor of New York, and from Mayor Kiel to the New York World, were provided by the Governor and the Mayor at the request of the Post-Dispatch, but could not be transferred to the cylinders in time for successful sending. The Governor's message, which was brought by his secretary, Thomas J. Cole, to the Post-Dispatch office, was:

Gov. Alfred E. Smith:
Dear Governor—This wonderful invention marks another step in the irresistible march of civilization, and will further strengthen the bond of friendship and commercial relations existing between the people of our two states. Cordially.

FREDERICK D. GARDNER.
Executive Mansion, City of Jefferson.
Mayor Kiel's message to the New York World was:

I congratulate you and the Post-Dispatch on your success.

FIRST SENDING OF PICTURE BY WIRE IN U. S. WITNESSED BY NOTED MEN

Heads of Telephone and Telegraph Companies Voice Admiration for Achievement Through Invention of Edouard Belin, French Engineer.

BROTHER SCIENTISTS CONGRATULATE HIM

Glass Screen, Graduated From Opacity to Transparency, Heart of Device Recording Vibrations as Light Rays.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A photograph which was in St. Louis yesterday afternoon was reproduced here this morning. This picture is the visible record of the first successful attempt ever made in America to transmit photographs over a wire, and the first demonstration of the apparatus invented by M. Edouard Belin, the eminent French engineer, and bearing the name of teletereograph.

It was a distinguished group that gathered yesterday in the editorial rooms of the New York World to witness this demonstration. Men, whose names are famous in the world of engineering science examined with the keen appreciation of experts the mechanism that makes this possible. All of them expressed their admiration not only at the delicacy of the method with which certain simple elementary principles of light, electricity and photography were combined, but also at the brilliance of the idea of the inventor, who had thus succeeded where other experimenters had failed.

The heads of the great telephone and telegraph companies and the engineers of the General Electric Co., the Western Electric Co. and other makers of electrical apparatus were interested spectators, as were officers of the United States army signal service. These latter were quick to recognize the value of this invention to the army in time of war.

Pictures From St. Louis.
It was 3 p. m. when the demonstration began. It was almost 9 when it closed. By this time the spectators were only a half dozen enthusiasts, the other having wandered to see a good photograph transmitted and then gone home to supper.

When the guests had assembled they were asked to pose for the moving pictures and the operators of the Pathe Film Co. turned their lights upon the scene so that it might be preserved for future generations.

The first picture St. Louis sent was of the self-propelled barge for Mississippi-Warrior river traffic. Because of difficulties with the sending mechanism, the picture received was faint and a little blurred.

When a photo of an Indian chief was developed, the negative and an enlarged print thereof were shown, still wet from the fixing and washing solutions, to the World's guests. These realized the importance, even the solemnity of the moment, for they were assisting at an epoch-making event in science, seeing with their own eyes the very first photograph successfully transmitted over a wire in America.

Congratulations to M. Belin, the inventor, and to the editors of the World followed from most of those present. Nikola Tesla was among the heartiest in shaking the hand of his brother scientist.

Glass Slide Heart of Device.
The process takes from eight to ten minutes, depending on the size of the picture. The actual development of the photograph on the sensitized film cannot, of course, be seen, for this is in a light-proof case penetrated only by the ray of light reflected from the vibrating mirror through a hole one-sixth of a millimeter in diameter.

Those who stand close enough.

Nikola Tesla Sees Sending of Pictures by Wireless in Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. NIKOLA TESLA, inventor of innumerable electric devices and discoverer of electric mechanical principles, said after witnessing the transmission of pictures by wire:

"I am obliged to The World for giving me the opportunity to witness this interesting demonstration. It is obvious to every observer that Mr. Belin has made a notable advance in the art and that there is a prospect of wide and useful application of his improvements."

"Of course the transmission of pictures has been accomplished with more or less success, long ago. Of the various inventions, Korm was the most successful, and his apparatus was tried a number of times in Germany, giving full satisfaction; but there were certain objectionable features in the older systems which Mr. Belin has happily eliminated so that his process is very much more suitable for practical use and, besides, capable of more accurate reproduction. This is due partially to the introduction of the photographic method, but mostly to the consummate skill which the inventor has brought to bear in developing his devices."

"There is no reason why this improvement should not be immediately applied, by the press especially, as it can be operated just as easily by the wireless method as by over the wire. I should say that within a year it will be perfectly practicable to transmit photographs from one country to another without wire, and it will be easily seen that results of the greatest importance will follow the use of this method, which will be, no doubt, further improved in the course of time. The World is to be congratulated on its enterprise."

WOOLEN MILL REMAINS JUST AS IT WAS WHEN CLOSED IN 1880

Cloth Factory Near Lawson, Mo., Stands With Machinery Intact and Wool Still in Looms.

By the Associated Press.
LAWSON, Mo., Nov. 15.—Deserted in the moving of the woolen mills to the Eastern coast, there stands southwest of here what was one of the largest woolen cloth factories in the Middle West half a century ago. Jewell Mayes, secretary of the Missouri Board of Agriculture, in commenting on the need of the State for woolen factories, told the history of this old factory.

The business of the establishment was great when it was running at its best. The brick in the deserted structure were burned in a kiln a few hundred yards from where the factory now stands, and the building is in good condition, although it was erected in 1881.

There are three floors, all filled with idle machinery, shipped by way of the Missouri River to Missouri City and hauled in wagons drawn by oxen. On the second floor are 23 machines, which are a curiosity at the present time. Everything in the factory is just as it was left when business was suspended about 1880. In this old factory are large and small spinning wheels, souvenirs of the time when the work was done by hand. Jeans, linseys, blankets, cassimeres and other woolen goods were manufactured in large quantities. The owner of the factory before his death in 1884 shut the factory down, without even clearing the floors, removing the threads from the looms or taking the carded wool from the spinning machines. And thus the factory stands.

PULITZER RACE ENTRIES CLOSE

Contestants Must Apply Today; 18 Army-Navy Planes Enter.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Applications for entries in the Pulitzer airplane race at Mineola, N. Y., on Thanksgiving day will not be considered after today. It was announced by the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America under whose auspices the race will be held. Eighteen planes from the army and navy air service have been entered, the committee announced, as well as all the participants in the recent Gordon Bennett race in France.

Telephone Association Meeting.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 15.—The annual two-day convention of the Missouri Telephone Association opened here today at 10 o'clock. An address of welcome by the president of the Chamber of Commerce was responded to by J. H. Woods, president of Culver-Stockton College, on behalf of the association. Noah W. Simpson, member of the public service commission, will deliver an address this afternoon.

Opinions Expressed by Men of Science After Demonstration of Sending Pictures by Wire

"It Is Not Beyond Belief That Theater Patrons May See Pictures of Events as They Transpire," Prof. F. E. Nipher Says.

After the demonstration of the teletereograph yesterday several of those who witnessed it, were asked to state their impressions of the device, as a scientific progression or as susceptible of practical uses. Their replies follow:

Francis E. Nipher, professor emeritus of physics in Washington University and international authority on that science: "There seems to be something in it. Its elements are old, but their co-ordination and application are new. Of course, I cannot predict what will come of it. Early in the last century Michael Faraday made certain experiments in electricity which are the foundation of the dynamo, the telephone, virtually everything that we now do with electricity. Yet Faraday himself, in his grandest dream, could not foresee that he was founding our modern business life—making possible this very instrument we have watched today."

"It is not beyond belief that further development of this instrument might make it possible for persons in a theater to watch motion pictures of events as they transpire or shortly thereafter."

Praised as Great Advance.
The Rev. Father Hugo Stotemeyer, head of the department of physics in St. Louis University: "It is a wonderful demonstration of control of nature's forces and the likeness of a man or of a scene by a device such as has been invented by Edouard Belin—an achievement in keeping with the modern swift movement of events. It is a great advance in the science of communication, that one necessity to human progress. None can foresee what may come of it and none can say how human ingenuity will fit it to commercial life, yet it seems probable that the transmission of light waves is an invention that may take us far."

Walter Upson, professor of electrical engineering in Washington University: "The inventor has taken advantage of the main well-developed pieces of apparatus, such as the telephone and oscillograph, an instrument in common use in electrical laboratories for steadily rapidly fluctuating currents. The combination of these two instruments is nothing in the parts or the whole which is not practical, nor is there any scientific reason which I can perceive at this time why it should not perform perfectly. How it may be developed further and how it may be used practically is a hazard. When wireless telegraphy was invented we thought its field would be limited. We now can circle the globe with it and it is coming into use almost in every back yard."

Value to Army Seen.
Maj. E. E. Harris, director of educational activities at Jefferson Barracks: "I can see certain valuable uses for this instrument in army maneuvers. The observation of the scouting officer maps enemy positions may be flashed back to the director of operations more rapidly. Drawings for which there is urgent necessity at various parts of a battle line may be transmitted faster than the fastest airplanes could carry them."

Mayor Kiel: "I can perceive the news value of this instrument. When the bomb explosion in New York occurred, it was 48 hours before we got pictures from newspapers of a scene we all were anxious to see. With this instrument the pictures might have appeared here on the day of the explosion."

"Suppose that some individual presents a check as stranger to the city and to the bank at which he appears. He is eager to get money quickly, but cannot because of lack of identification. The bank could obtain by this instrument a facsimile of his signature from the man's own bank in a distant city and a photograph to further identify him."

Use in Criminal Cases.

City Counselor Dues: "One of the obvious uses for this instrument is in criminal prosecutions. I remember that when I was in the United States District Attorney's office, we required the identification of a prisoner and the man who could best identify him was in British Columbia. It required two months to complete the identification. During that time we held our prisoner against writs of habeas corpus and other processes with the greatest difficulty and though we had the right man. With this instrument a photograph of the prisoner could have been transmitted to British Columbia, identified there and our difficulties averted."

C. F. Bartlett, chief operating officer of the Postal Telegraph Co.: "This instrument, I imagine, would be useful for the transmission of facsimiles of legal documents or business papers where an exact reproduction of an original is desirable. 'Telegraph' companies have the machine, when it is developed more highly for the transmission of messages more quickly and more cheaply than they now do and conveying to the receiver of the message a facsimile of the handwriting he recognizes."

Dr. Withers' View.
Dr. John W. Withers, Superintendent of Schools: "About 18 years ago Alfred R. Wallace, the great English scientist, published a book entitled 'The Wonderful Century,' in which he listed 39 great discoveries and inventions which he considered being of the first magnitude in their influence upon the development of civilization. Of the 39, 24 were found to belong to the nineteenth century, as against 15 for all preceding centuries."

"As I witnessed the demonstration yesterday afternoon I was impressed with the fact that this new discovery is entitled to a place in the list and is an achievement quite as wonderful as any that have gone before. To witness such a demonstration leads one to believe that almost anything in the field of science is possible. What in one decade is considered foolishness becomes a reality in the succeeding decade."

"Some time ago Prof. Nipher of Washington University made the discovery that under certain conditions he was able to photograph fibers of glass in places from which these fibers had previously been removed. In other words, he was able to photograph these fibers on account of the influence which their presence had exerted upon the materials with which they had been surrounded."

Japanese Attaché Denies Japan Contract for 3,000,000 Projectiles.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 15.—The mystery of who ordered the 3,000,000 gas shells now being made at a munitions plant in Renfrew, Scotland, was deepened when Major-General Matsuo Itami, the Japanese military attaché here, denied to the Post-Dispatch correspondent the rumor that it is a Japanese contract.

British labor became considerably agitated over the news of the contract earlier in the week and, replying to a question in the House of Commons, the Government answered that the shells were not ordered by the War Office or any other Government department, but by "a foreign Government."

Cotton Mills on 3-Day Schedule.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Nov. 15.—The Pepperell and York cotton mills, employing 4800 persons, today started a working schedule of three days a week, to continue until further notice. For some weeks the Pepperell mills have been running only four days a week. The York mills have been on full time.

Nine Tickets for 50 Cents, and 1 Cent for Transfers.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 15.—A 6-cent street car fare, or nine tickets for 50 cents and 1-cent charge for transfer, the maximum allowed by the Taylor grant, under which the Cleveland street car system is operated, went into effect here yesterday. It is the highest rate paid on the Cleveland street cars in many years, but is probably the cheapest fare in the country for a city the size of Cleveland.

Under the terms of the Taylor grant, the fare automatically goes up when the interest fund of the Cleveland Railway Co. drops below $300,000. When this interest fund goes above $300,000, the fare automatically drops again on a sliding basis, playing 4800 persons, today started a working schedule of three days a week, to continue until further notice. For some weeks the Pepperell mills have been running only four days a week. The York mills have been on full time.

Children in School Need Plenty of Milk

The development of a child's mind depends greatly upon proper nourishment.

Milk is nature's food, and is best adapted to the up-building of healthy, vigorous minds and bodies.

St. Louis Dairy Company's milk is pure and wholesome—and is rich in those qualities so necessary in aiding nature to build tissue and to ward off illness.

Give children all the milk they can drink. They love its fresh, nourishing goodness, and will thrive upon it.

Then, too, St. Louis Dairy Company's milk is absolutely safe, because it's carefully guarded and protected from the dairy to your home.

ROBBERS THROW MAN FROM 25-FOOT PORCH

Tony Raupka Attacked at Door of Home—Other Hold-ups Reported.

Tony Raupka, 50 years old, of 521A O'Fallon street, was seriously injured when attacked at the door of his home early yesterday by two men who robbed him of $26. He was found unconscious in the yard of his home about 5 a. m. He said he had struggled with two men who knocked him from a porch 25 feet high as he was entering the house. His right arm was broken and he had cuts and bruises on his head.

Frank Brodzicka of 5947 A Shulte street, reported he was held up and robbed by two men who drove up in an automobile to the corner of Taylor and Florissant avenues, where he was waiting for a car, and at the point of revolvers took $40.45 from his pockets, at 2:30 o'clock this morning. One of the two men handed back the small change to Brodzicka, saying he would need it for carfare.

Robbed of Overcoat.
At 12:30 o'clock last night Julius Horwitz of 957 Catalpa street, who had alighted from a Hodiament car at Catalpa street, was accosted by a man who leveled a revolver at him and said: "It's cold, pardner. I need that overcoat; get out of it."

Horwitz complied and the man, after donning the coat, ran from the scene.

Two men stopped Paul Shannon of 1339 Aubert avenue at Euclid and Lotus avenues at 12:30 a. m. and took $18, a watch, diamond pin and ring from him. They gave back the jewelry when they discovered it bore Shannon's initials.

Two men held up Julius Raupka of 4949 Forest Park boulevard at 11:11 p. m. near his home and took $12. Earl Chesney of 2539 Ohio avenue was robbed of 50 cents and a watch at Ohio and Chippewa avenues about 12:30 a. m.

Hit on Head by Robbers.
Benjamin Padatzik of 2616 Thomas street, was held up at Jefferson and Sheridan avenues at 4:30 a. m. by two men who took $100 from him. Padatzik attempted to resist and was struck on the head with a revolver.

NOTED MEN SEE FIRST SENDING OF PHOTOGRAPH BY WIRE IN AMERICA

however, can see between the mirror and the receiving cylinder a ray of light dancing backward and forward on a slide of glass, and if they look very closely they observe that this glass is black at one end and transparent at the other, with all gradations of shade between.

The untitled in photography and electricity were puzzled by this and asked many questions as to what it was, but the scientists recognized instantly that this little piece of graduated glass was the heart of the whole device, for it is this that varies the intensity of the light ray and makes its image upon the sensitized film with varying degrees of light and shade.

The tiny mirror also aroused great curiosity. Few could see it at all, for it is hidden between two heavy magnetic coils, being exactly in the center of their flux, so one must know just where it is and from where to look before one can see it. It looks like a brilliant pin head and is about that size, and it needs a good eye to follow its rapid and minute vibrations. It is suspended from two silver wires, so fine that only a few eyes can see them without a microscope.

Control of Vibrations.
The vibrations of this mirror, it was explained to these present, are controlled by the vibrations of the microphone at the sending point. This microphone carries the needle which passes over the graduated surface of the picture to be sent. Thus the microphone and mirror, working perfectly together, translate a photograph record into terms of light, deservit miner and wear a lantern.

The lamp was a puzzle even to the electric lighting experts present, for it was the first of its kind ever seen in America. It is made in England specially for experimental purposes. It is a tiny arc light in a bulb. The arc is formed between a filament of platinum and a ball of tungsten, and is so intense that it gives 100 candle power at what is virtually a point. Incidentally, lighting engineers were informed that these lamps have a lifetime of only 10 hours and cost about $5 each. So there is no likelihood of their being introduced for household use.

Was it a success? Emphatically yes. The eminent engineers who were present could scarcely find words strong enough to express their enthusiasm. It was a little disappointing that the unfortunate breaking of the microphone in St. Louis prevented the reception of the interesting picture of the new Mississippi river boat, but after all, this was an incidental mishap that detracted in no way from the great scientific principle established by the experiment.

After the last of the guests had gone, M. Belin voiced his admiration for the enterprise of the World and Post-Dispatch in bringing him and his associates from France to America with their apparatus, just for the purpose of giving to the people of America a demonstration of his invention, and his gratitude to them for inviting some of the leaders in scientific circles to be present when this was tested for the first time in America.

NAVY MINISTER DENIES JAPAN IS ESTABLISHING ISLAND BASES

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 15.—Capt. Nomura, aid to the Minister of the Navy, speaking in the name of the Minister Saturday, said every report that Japan was fortifying or planning to fortify and establish bases in the mandated Pacific Islands is wholly and completely false, according to the Kokusai Agency.

Japan, he declared, is living up strictly to every mandate under the terms of the League of Nations covenant.

Congressman L. C. Dyer, speaking to members of the Rotary Club at Hotel Statler last Thursday, declared the United States was being rapidly cut off from communication with the Philippines and the entire Far East by gigantic fortifications now being erected on the Caroline, Ladrone and Marshall Islands, formerly owned by Germany but awarded to Japan by the peace conference, and said American naval authorities had protested against the award on the ground that these islands constitute a screen behind which the Philippines might be seized and the American naval base on Guam enveloped. He predicted war in a few years with Japan unless the United States dealt firmly with the situation as it exists in the Orient and builds and maintains a navy in the Pacific second to none.

Crude Oil and the Auto- mobile

IN 1913 (when there were 1,009,000 automobiles in the United States) oil producers drilled about 25,000 wells. The average paid for crude was 95c per barrel.

In 1914 producers had a little discouragement. The price for crude oil fell off to 81c average, and they drilled only 23,000 wells. These wells, however, proved exceptionally prolific and crude prices dropped to an average of 64c a barrel (40c in the Mid-Continent field). As a consequence of the over-production, the bottom dropped out of the gasoline market and low prices prevailed.

The low prices of crude made exploration of new fields unprofitable, and in 1915 only 14,000 wells were drilled. This halt in production enabled demand to creep up on supply, and caused, crude to advance until it reached $1.10 per barrel.

Encouraged by the better prices offered, producers put down 24,000 wells in 1916. The unprecedented demand aroused by the war caused petroleum prices to soar, and, notwithstanding the activities in the producing field, prices have continued to advance because demand exceeded supply.

In August, 1920, the number of new oil wells brought in for that month alone was 3,513—the highest oil production mark in the history of the United States. Yet so great was demand that Mid-Continent crude stood firm at $3.50, and Pennsylvania crude at $6.10 per barrel, the present prevailing prices.

The market price for crude is not apt to go off appreciably while demand continues to increase as during 1920.

Since 1913 the number of motor vehicles in the United States has increased to approximately 7,459,607, and the forecast for 1921 is 10 million motor vehicles in the United States.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is straining every fibre and sinew of its highly specialized organization to increase the yield of gasoline from crude petroleum.

How well it is succeeding is indicated by the fact that an eminent authority states that the Burton process, originating in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has produced 40 million barrels of gasoline from heavy distillates, and has thus saved approximately 150 million barrels of crude oil that would otherwise have been necessary to produce an equivalent amount of gasoline.

POUNDS OF BLOOD

Every healthy adult should have a definite quantity of rich, red blood coursing through their veins.

PEPTO-MANGAN MAKES RED BLOOD

Builds up men and women who lack energy.

A healthy, full-grown person has in the neighborhood of fourteen pounds of blood in his or her body. The weight of the blood varies with different people, but it should not vary with the individual.

For instance, if the normal weight of four blood is twelve pounds, and it falls off a pound in weight, it is one of the most precious pounds in the world and should be immediately regained.

To turn weak, watery blood into live, red, health-building blood, take Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is an absolutely potent blood-builder in all conditions of lowered vitality not due to serious disease of the vital organs. It improves the appetite, imparts color to the cheeks, and creates new hope and ambition in those who have become pale, weak and listless. Physicians recommend Gude's Pepto-Mangan. When you order, be sure the word "Gude" is on the package. With out "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan. Furnished in both liquid and tablet form. For sale by all druggists.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid uric; apply it at night when re-living; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

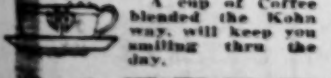

You will find too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid uric at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Treasurer Taylor's Report Shows Receipts of $29,595; Additional Funds to Be Accounted for Later.

$7000 TO CITY
COMMITTEE HERE

Body Which Fought the Three K's Reports Collections of $950 and Expenditure of Like Amount.

A statement of receipts and expenditures of the Democratic State Committee, filed in the Recorder's office by Daniel G. Taylor, treasurer of the committee, contains a report of collections totalling $29,595.81, and expenditures of $26,958.72. Additional funds were contributed directly to Secretary Fisher and will be accounted for in a supplemental report by him.

Treasurer Taylor reported that of the amount which passed through his hands $753.55 was expended for traveling expenses and for stenographic work in making the collections, $14,250 was expended by the Democratic State Committee, $7000 went to the Democratic City Committee, and $1000 to the Democratic National Committee. The remainder was sent in small amounts to various county organizations.

Among the contributors. Among the contributors to the fund were Sam Lazarus, $250; Mrs. Breckinridge Long, $1000; Daniel G. Taylor, $400; Breckinridge Jones, $100; Sam W. Fordyce, $250; Gov. Gardner, $1000; Mrs. Gardner, $250; William K. Gardner, $100; J. R. Carroll, $100; Charles N. Williams, $100; Charles W. Bates, $100; William T. Jones, $100; Hickman P. Rodgers, $300; T. H. L. Johnston, $200; Judge R. L. Goode, $100; Congressman Igoe, $100; Martin Shaughnessy, $150; Mrs. Laura Jourdan, $100, and James T. Bradshaw, State Grain Inspector, $1035.50. The latter amount represents collections from employees of the Grain Department. Anonymous subscriptions amounted to $107.50.

Judge George D. Reynolds, who was re-elected to the St. Louis Court of Appeals, reported expenditures of $997.06, of which $500 went to the Republican State Committee, and the remainder for advertising and other expenses. He included $15.25 for an automobile and gasoline on a trip to St. Charles, and $2.50 for gasoline for an automobile on another occasion.

Charles E. Mohrstadt, who was elected sheriff, reported expenditures of $1200, of which $500 went to the Republican City Committee, and the remainder for advertising and tickets to various entertainments.

Judge Grimm's Report. Judge J. Hugo Grimm, re-elected, reported expenditures of $1006.75, of which $500 went to the Republican City Committee and the remainder for advertising.

Frank R. Warner, re-elected to the State Senate from the twenty-ninth district, reported expenditures of $115.

Frank O. Bittner, re-elected to the Legislature, reported expenditures of $35 all for advertising.

The Citizens Court Committee, which conducted a campaign among lawyers, against the three K's, reported collections of $750 and expenditures of the same amount. Douglas W. Robert was chairman of the committee.

588 CASES OF WHISKY STOLEN

Two Freight Cars Looted in Yards at Newark, N. J.

By the Associated Press. NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 15.—A band of whisky thieves, believed by the police to number 25 or more, early yesterday broke open two freight cars in the South Broad street railroad yards here and stole 588 cases of whisky and 44 barrels of alcohol.

The loot was carried off in motor trucks after a railroad policeman had been kidnapped.

The robbers had emptied two freight cars and were breaking into the third car when the police surprised them. The police feared to open fire on the robbers in the darkness lest they might wound one another, and in the delay the thieves fled down the railroad tracks, through the maze of cars and escaped. Two trucks filled with plunder were recovered. The whiskey barrels bore labels of the American Distilling Co., Peckin, Ill. One of the abandoned trucks was identified as the property of a Newark man, who told the police it had been stolen. The other is owned by an express company, an employee of which is missing.

Aged, Wrinkled Faces
Easily Rejuvenated

An aged face is often only a mask to a comparatively youthful person. Beneath is a countenance young and fair to look upon. It's a simple matter to remove the mask. Ordinary marcolized wax, to be had at any drug store, gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin; in a week or two the user has the loveliest pinky white complexion imaginable. An ounce of the wax usually is sufficient to complete the transformation. It is put on at night like cold cream and taken off in the morning with warm water.

This remarkable treatment is invariably effective, no matter how muddy, yellow or discolored the complexion. Freckles, mottledness, liver spots, pimples, blackheads and other cutaneous blemishes naturally vanish with the discarded skin.

To remove wrinkles and flabbiness, here is a recipe that cannot be too highly recommended. Powdered salicylic acid, dissolved in witch hazel, one half pint. Use as a wash lotion.

New York Wednesday night.

Camped once more in the plumb centre of our old stamping grounds—rubbing elbows with the roaring racket and running flush into more electric displays, blazing posters and swarming signs that sound the joys of Camel Cigarettes than you'd ever believe could be jammed into one town!

When I hit Broadway this p.m. I'd said the Reynolds folks had transplanted "Camel City" right up here!

It seems like all New Yorkers have adopted Camels as their own personal brand! And, Pete, since this is the original speed town, it's only what you expect when you see 'em. Carry a package of Camels in each coat pocket! If their right hand is busy they dig out their left hand deck—they just won't lose time getting a Camel lighted! That's the gait around here, old throbber!

And, Peter, the New Yorker has his own A-1 pet reason why he's so keen for Camels! For instance, Doc Marshall will bet his car on Camels quality against any cigarette in the world! Bill James says to me:—"Shorty, there never was mild, mellow body like Camels!" And, as for Dan Boggs—he spills it that Camels are the only cigarette free from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or cigarette odor! And, he knows! Frank Frazer will tell you it's Camels wonderful Turkish and Domestic blend! And, ALL of them are right!!!

And, Pete, old proof-of-the-pudding—you tell 'em that Missouri hasn't anything on little old New York when it comes to that. "Show me" stuff—on cigarettes or anything else!

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotab, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel tablet called Calotab, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old-style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Druggists sell Calotabs only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.

BURGLARS AT WOMEN'S APPAREL STORE

Goods Valued at $8669 Stolen
From 3614 Olive Street—
Other Stores Robbed.

The Lucille Millinery Co., a women's apparel shop at 3614 Olive street, was looted by burglars early yesterday of articles valued at $8669.50. Mrs. Sylvia L. Smith, of 4224 Westminster place, proprietor, discovered the robbery yesterday, and made an inventory. There is $2000 insurance on the stock.

Some of the articles stolen were a German fitz fur scarf, moleskin and sealskin capes and coats, French fur box, 50 dresses and 50 hats. Residents of the neighborhood reported they saw three men loitering in a hall next to the store about 2 a. m. Entrance was gained through a side door, and it is presumed an automobile or truck was used to carry the stock away.

Other Stores Robbed.
Other stores robbed Saturday night are as follows: Isadore Patash, 1431 Franklin avenue, clothing, $500; Dierker & Schaeperkoetter, 416 North Third street, cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, $125; Reinhold Wurst, 2656 Lafayette avenue, saloon, $25 in cash; Faust Candy Co., 5375 Easton avenue, combination knocked off the safe but nothing taken.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wagener of 4249 Carter avenue returned home about 8 o'clock last evening, they saw a front shade of the parlor suddenly pulled down. Wagener peeped under the shade to see if anyone was in the house, and while he was so occupied a man dashed out of the front door and ran around the house to the alley. Wagener pursued him, and in the alley, the fleeing man turned and fired two shots at Wagener, both of which missed, but caused Wagener to give up the chase. Nothing was stolen.

Holdup Men Ring Bell.
Answering the doorbell at her home at 839 p. m., Mrs. Emma Zellinger, 4115 North Twenty-second street, was confronted by three men, one of whom had a revolver and gave the command, "Hands up." Mrs. Zellinger slammed the door and screamed, and the men fled. Her husband and three children were in a rear room at the time.

The home of Thomas J. Ryan, 3853 Lafayette avenue, was robbed last night in his absence of $1250 in cash and jewelry valued at $200. That of Charles H. Judy, 4160 Flad avenue, was robbed of $3 cash and $150 in jewelry in the absence of the family.

DAUGHTERS OF CONFEDERACY TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS IN 1921

Report at Asheville (N. C.) Meeting Shows $6518 of $18,000 Jefferson Davis Monument Fund Paid.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 15.—The twenty-seventh annual convention of the U. D. C., grand division, adjourned here Saturday night to meet in St. Louis next year, on a date to be selected later.

The final report of the committee on the hero fund was made by Mrs. Beale of Arkansas, with the total of $26,595.51 paid in to award the Matthew Fontaine Maury prize. Mrs. W. C. Flournoy of Virginia stated that Admiral Scales presented the prize, a handsome pair of marine binoculars, to Midshipman R. E. Lashy. This prize is given for efficiency in the physics department of the Annapolis Naval Academy. Mrs. J. H. Crenshaw of Alabama presented a gift of $50 to be used for the Matthew Fontaine Maury prize next year.

Mrs. R. D. Wright, acting for Mrs. James S. Gantt of Missouri, chairman of the Committee on Revising Naval Records, read the report. Recommendation was passed that local chapters of the U. D. C. endeavor to have the favorite hymns of Lee and Jackson sung in the churches over the South on the Sunday preceding their birthdays. By motion of the treasurer general, Mrs. A. H. Norris, she was instructed to send each of the old ladies of the Confederacy receiving pensions, a Christmas present of $5. A total of $1194 was subscribed to the Jefferson Davis National Highway. The Committee on Monument Fairview, Ky., made by Mrs. Jackie Daniel Thrash of Tarboro, N. C., chairman, showed $6518 of the quota of $18,000 had been paid.

FRENCH CRITICISE AERO CLUB

Say International Regulations Were Violated in Recent Balloon Race.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Capt. Louis Mischauer and Leo Nathan, representative of France in the recent James Gordon Bennett international balloon race in the United States, returned to France yesterday and complained that the Aero Club of America had violated the regulations of the International Aeronautic Federation.

In a report made to the Aero Club of France, they enumerate the following grievances: First, that only one commissioner was present in Birmingham, where the race started, namely, Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America. Second, that there was a complete lack of commissioners entrusted with the task of inspecting the balloons. Third, that Hawley did not request the competitors to produce pilots' licenses. Fourth, that the commissioner did not verify the cubic capacity of each balloon. Fifth, that the competitors were not provided with sealed barographs, rendering it impossible to ascertain whether any competitor had made a landing before the final one.

New Elixir, Called Aspirinal, Medicated With Latest Scientific Remedies, Used and Endorsed by European and American Army Surgeons to Cut Short a Cold and Prevent Complications.

Every Druggist in U. S. Instructed to Refund Price While You Wait at Counter if Relief Does Not Come Within Two Minutes.

Delightful Taste, Immediate Relief, Quick Warm-Up.

The sensation of the year in the drug trade is Aspirinal, the "two-minute cold and cough reliver," authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and procured by the common people as fast as it is quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have tried.

All drug stores are now supplied with the wonderful new elixir, so all you have to do to get rid of that cold is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirinal and tell him to serve you two spoonfuls with four teaspoonfuls of water in a glass. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel your cold fading away like a dream within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for the druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

When your cold or cough is relieved, take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and babies, for Aspirinal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for infants and children.

CENTRAL TRADES DISCUSSES PROPOSED UNION BANK HERE

The proposition to start a trades union co-operative bank in St. Louis was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Union and referred to the Building Trades Council and Metropolitan Trades Council for a survey of conditions.

It had been suggested by officers of the Building Trades Council and the Central Trades and Labor Union that a bank patterned after an institution maintained by the railway brotherhoods in Cleveland could be successfully operated by the trades unionists of St. Louis. Several delegates at yesterday's meeting objected to the plan, saying that such an enterprise would have to be gradually worked up to a point where success would be assured before starting.

Discussing the proposed union labor bank James Scully, business agent of the Walters' Union, charged that workmen's savings were being used by the banks to fight workmen by means of the open shop. He charged that one St. Louis restaurant where a strike is now on had been prevented from signing a union agreement by a bank that threatened to call a loan of $12,000 if he did so.

Davil Kreyling, secretary of Central Trades, spoke on the subject and in referring to Scully's remarks said Scully's charges ought to have been accompanied by proof.

The campaign of the Tuberculosis Society and the Local Safety Council were endorsed by the body.

JANITOR SHOT BY MAN HE TOOK INTO BASEMENT TO GET WARM

Bert Hennessy, 48 years old, a janitor employed at the home of Mrs. Emma O'Connor, 3501 Pine street, was shot through the jaw and tongue in the basement of that number at 7:30 p. m. yesterday by a man whose name he furnished the police by writing on a piece of paper, as he was unable to talk because of the wound.

He wrote that he had invited the man into the basement to get warm and while there they got in an argument, during which the man drew a revolver and fired at him. Mrs. O'Connor heard the shot and on going into the basement found Hennessy wounded and called the police.

The assailant escaped. Hennessy was taken to the city hospital.

All Night Long

Film acids may attack your teeth

There is a film on your teeth and between your teeth which brushing does not end.

It wrecks millions of teeth. It dims white teeth, attacks sound teeth, and leads to countless ill effects. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

The film when fresh is viscous—you can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Night and day, if not removed, it may do ceaseless damage in these ways:

What Film Does

Film absorbs stains and makes the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance, which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles, local and internal.

It must be fought

Dentists long have realized that this film must be fought. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, for old brushing methods left much of the film intact.

Dental science has for years sought effective methods, and they have now been found. Able authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

Leading dentists everywhere advise them.

Now these methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Millions of people have already adopted it. And a 10-Day Tube is being sent to those who do not know it.

Also aids nature

Pepsodent also aids Nature in some important ways. It aids the digestion of starch on teeth, which otherwise clings and may form acid. It increases the alkalis which Nature provides to constantly combat mouth acids.

These effects are natural and needed. Proper diet, rich in acid fruits, would bring them. But constant proper diet is quite rare. So high authorities agree that the tooth paste should twice daily apply this stimulation.

Five Desired Effects

Each use of Pepsodent brings these five desired effects:

- 1—A multiplied salivary flow.
- 2—Multiplied starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that otherwise cling and may form acid.
- 3—Multiplied alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.
- 4—A two-fold attack on film.
- 5—High polish, so film cannot easily adhere.

We Send
A 10-Day Tube

Simply mail the coupon for a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Watch the delightful effects. See how white your teeth look, how clean they feel, in a week.

Pepsodent will quickly prove itself. You will see results unique and beneficial. The book we send will tell the reasons for them.

Soon you will realize that teeth are whiter, cleaner, safer than they were. You will know that this new method brings you new protection.

To women it means more beautiful teeth. To men who smoke, less stain. To all, old and young, it means such real teeth cleaning as old ways do not bring. You meet people daily who know this already. Prove it for yourself.

See how teeth change in ten days

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Feel your teeth before and after using. Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. What you see and feel will soon convince you what is best for you and yours.

Cut out the coupon now, for this test is important.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Woman for Mayor.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The city of St. Louis has been suffering for 12 years with political locomotor ataxia. It is inevitable, when one party remains in power for this length of time, that city hall gangs and courtship gangs are formed and work hand in hand, to the detriment of the city's best interest, and always working great burdens upon taxpayers. All one has to do is to consider the payroll and he will find the parks filled with useless employees and at the city hall, from cellar to roof, useless and unnecessary expenditures on every hand.

In the last campaign one of the ring-leaders of the city hall ring exclaimed, "I am a Republican before I am a house cleaner." This gentleman has drawn almost $200,000 in salary out of the treasury and is now planning to again fasten himself upon the payroll. The same condition exists in the Mayor's department. There is nothing in our charter which will prevent a woman becoming Mayor of St. Louis, and it is the only way to get a clean, conscientious administration, divorced entirely from ring politicians.

We have a number of women in St. Louis who would give us a most excellent administration, and our streets would be in better condition, our departments would render better service and we would certainly get rid of all the old barnacles that have been fastened on the payroll for the past 12 or 14 years.

I respectfully suggest that your paper take up this matter and see if Mrs. Gellhorn, Mrs. Chivvis, Mrs. Senseney or Mrs. Bruggeman will not continue the glorious work done by the women of this city and give our city a new, clean, up-to-date administration next spring. The women of St. Louis can do this and they owe it to the city to see to it that there is a complete change at the city hall. The campaign of education should be begun at once in order that this idea may take hold of the people and that St. Louis be lifted out of the political rut in which it has been traveling for the past 12 years. The courthouse ring has been broken; it is now up to the women voters of St. Louis to put St. Louis on the map and elect a woman Mayor and get entirely rid of the gang of self-seeking politicians who have been the cause of our political decadence. Yours

"FOR A BETTER ST. LOUIS."

The Price of Bread.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Loud claims of great reductions of prices may satisfy some of the dear people from whose pockets the much-desired funds are sought to be enticed, but it takes only a little experience to show how reluctantly the profiteers are coming down, even when wholesale or cost prices should indicate a natural drop.

A present outstanding example is the price of a pound of bread. Before the war a pound (16 ounces) of white bread cost universally 5 cents. For years we have all been paying from two to three times as much. Wheat has been turning in price for months past; yet do we see any considerable increase in the size of the loaf or decrease in the price demanded? And why not, unless it is reluctance to give up profiteering in the very "staff of life"? CONSUMER.

"Our National Air."
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I hope you will grant me a small space in your valued column as I have a few words to say on a subject which I think should be placed before the people—our national air. Had there been any Brit-ers in the audience of one of St. Louis' leading motion picture theaters on election evening they would surely have been greatly puzzled, secretly amused or highly flattered, according to their intellect or sense of humor, to see nearly the entire audience stand up in reverence while the orchestra played the British national hymn, "God Save the King." This beautiful old melody, to which we have placed American words and which we have rechristened "America," or, more commonly, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," is nevertheless, and always has been since many years before our country was in existence, the national hymn of Great Britain and cannot possibly be construed, either with or without the words, to be the national hymn of the United States of America.

When will the people of our country, and when will the orchestra leaders of our country learn that our country has but one national hymn, the most stirring of all national hymns, "The Star-Spangled Banner"? C. G. G.

The New Washington Avenue.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In behalf of the Washington Avenue Property Owners' Association let me extend to you our sincere thanks for the excellent manner in which you took care of the publicity for the ceremonies of the opening of the newly-widened section of Washington avenue.

We believe we have accomplished something which will reflect to the credit of our great city, and we are glad that you were with us in this step of civic development. Hoping this will be but an incentive to greater improvements, and looking forward to your continued co-operation in these affairs, I am, yours very truly,
T. WATTS JR.,
President Washington Avenue Property Owners' Association.

THE LEAGUE IN SESSION.

The miracle of Lazarus is repeated at Geneva today. The "dead" is alive. The Assembly of the League of Nations, which is declared "deceased" by Senator Harding, meets in the Swiss city to consider the welfare of the peoples of the earth, with the special object of promoting and establishing justice and peace among the nations.

There is no organized opposition to the League outside of the United States, which, for the first time, is lagging in a movement to maintain international fair dealing and peace through a covenant of the nations to substitute reason and law for arbitrary action and the sword. Forty-one nations will be represented at Geneva. There are forces against it in all countries—the jingoes, the junkies, the war profiteers—but it is only in America that the dark, powerful interests that thrive on strife, augmented by doubt and fear, which have been played for partisan purposes, are strong enough to halt the march of progress. Even Germany, the former leader of autocracy and militarism, is eagerly desirous of entering the League.

Among the questions to be considered by the Assembly and the Council are proposals to amend the Constitution of the League, for which they are specifically empowered by the original compact. It is a propitious time to suggest amendments covering the substantial points of objection which have been urged against it by the reservationists of both leading parties in this country.

We suggest that the main reservations proposed in the Senate be put into reasonable form and offered to the League as a bill of rights, applicable to all member nations of the League; that instead of demanding reservations for the United States alone, we ask as the condition of our ratification and participation the adoption of a bill of rights corresponding to the reserved powers of the states in our own Constitution, which would reserve certain inherent and necessary rights and powers to each nation in the League. The four main points are the right to declare war and to use military forces, the right of withdrawal on notice, equality of voting and freedom from interference in domestic questions. This would conserve the sovereignty of each nation in things essential to its own liberty and welfare and give the League full scope to utilize all the processes of peace provided in the covenant and to call upon the nations to enforce peace against wanton aggression when such action is necessary.

In the transition between the close of the Wilson administration and the opening of the Harding administration, the United States Government is not in a good position to propose these amendments, but it could be done through American initiative by a member of the League. Leading Republicans in favor of the League, such as Messrs. Taft, Root, Wickersham, Hughes, might draw up a bill of rights to be submitted to the League. They might wisely confer with Democratic as well as Republican Senators favorable to any reasonable conclusion whose support is necessary to ratification. It might be done through the League to Enforce Peace, the organization having the general cause in charge. The League organization might well further the movement and through the co-operation of representative men of a member nation have the amendments presented to the Council and Assembly.

With amendments to the covenant covering objections of Republican leaders in this country adopted by the League, the path would be opened to our honorable entrance into and participation in the League. The League is alive and we face the alternative of dealing with it in harmony with its peace purposes from within or dealing with it in opposition from without.

Mr. Harding is doubtless competent to organize his own Cabinet, but if he wants the liveliest administration in our history he will hand the war portfolio over to Senator James A. Reed.

THE TELESTEREOGRAPH.

Over a thousand miles of wire, linking the editorial offices of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World, electric impulses wrote an important chapter to twentieth century scientific annals, yesterday, when a photograph prepared in St. Louis was transmitted in the space of 10 minutes and reproduced in the columns of today's New York World. It was the first use in the United States, before the scrutiny of men of learning, of the Bell telestereograph, and the verdict of those observers was that the principle of electrical transmission of varying light waves had been established.

The recording of sound waves, and their subsequent reproduction, is a commonplace experience, because of the telephone and the talking machine. The new telestereographic transmission device accomplishes with beams of light exactly what those other instruments achieve with the vibrations of air.

With the principle demonstrated, perfection in operation should follow as a matter of course. The first sewing machine, the first typewriter, the first gas engine, were extremely crude when contrasted with similar devices we use today. Is it likely there will be any different story to record of the telestereograph?

Anxiety has already crept into print about the rent Mr. Coolidge of Massachusetts will have to pay

THE BILL TO PARTITION IRELAND.

The course of world events during the past half-century has been such that the passage of a home-rule bill for Ireland cannot be a matter of indifference, despite the languid, pessimistic session of Parliament at which it reached its final stage.

This is the second measure styled a home-rule measure to be enacted in a generation, the net result of an unexampled effort in any country to obtain through peaceful means a specific constitutional change. And this net result is really a bill for the partitioning of Ireland.

Having demanded incessantly since Jan. 1, 1801, a Parliament of its own, the island now has a prospect of being overparliamented. The bill creates one legislative body of two chambers for six counties and a second legislative body of two chambers for the remaining counties. A sort of joint committee of the two bodies is to be established to confer on matters of common concern. If, through a refusal to accept its provisions or other reason, the scheme proves unworkable in either section of the divided country, such section may be governed by a royal committee responsible only to London.

The bitterness between the northern counties and the remaining counties, long intense, has now reached a pitch unparalleled in the past. It might seem that it would be particularly obnoxious for the one section to have its representatives meet in close parliamentary association with representatives of the other.

But there is, nevertheless, nothing in the present temper of the people indicating that the country is likely to accept the measure. Lloyd George admitted as much in his address. London reserves to itself under the bill the principal functions of government, including the taxation of incomes and excess profits, the chief source of revenue in the British Isles. The twin Parliaments are graciously accorded the remaining sources of revenue.

All circumstances indicate that the passage of the bill was a farce and that Lloyd George knew it was a farce. It duplicates the mockery of 1914, in which a plan of self-government was decreed, only to be rendered inoperative under resolution of the same Parliament which had approved it a few days before—a mockery largely responsible for the alarming new phase of the struggle through which the psychology of the Irish people has since manifested itself.

Twenty-five years ago this bill might have been welcomed, at least as recognizing a principle. British sentiment is generally just about that much behind in dealing with the Irish question. Such acceleration as will place it 25 years ahead is the first condition to success. At any rate, this is no time for frivolous mockeries, for the statesmanship that expresses itself in gesture.

With unrest lessened in other places that long have been storm centers, the Irish problem has become the world's greatest menace to stability and order. The events that followed the farce of 1914 are ominous of what may follow another farcical attempt at a solution in 1920.

An English engineer tells us that our telephone system is superior to Great Britain's. "God save the King!"

THE AMBITIOUS VOLSTEAD GENTLEMEN.

Hops are an innocent agricultural product and a perfectly legitimate subject of commerce. Malt is also an innocent agricultural product which has gone through a minor stage of manufacture and is likewise a legitimate subject of commerce.

Nothing in the Eighteenth amendment enlarges the jurisdiction over either that may be exercised by Congress or Volstead agents or any other Federal functionary. But because hops and malt extract have in their elements that may be transformed, with proper agencies, into fluids with three-fourths of one per cent alcoholic content, or other percentages in excess of a half of one per cent, Volstead agents assert a right to restrict, prohibit and even penalize traffic in these products.

But if they oppose their will to persons who trade in these products, how can they fail to meddle with the trade in other products of similar possibilities? All grains and fruits are a potential source of alcohol. Are we to have Volstead dictatorships over grains and fruits? The Irish make a comforting potheen from potatoes. Are potatoes to be rationed with the burden of proof on the purchaser to show that a consumption as baked, boiled, mashed, and not in potable form, is intended? How about sugar, which is advanced several stages nearer to the alcohol reaction than other products?

These Volstead agents are going to be very busy gentlemen if they follow the lines they seem to have mapped out for themselves. May it not be better to await the point where materials are actually transformed into the alcohol over which alone the amendment gives them power? Have they had such a brilliant success so far in the border and other cities in suppressing an undoubtedly criminal and lamentably demoralizing traffic in alcohol itself that they now yearn to take on themselves the regulation of the American household whose domestic arrangements may include provision for a little mild home brew?

A TOWN ON THE RIVER.

I KNOW a town all through Better than I know myself.
Sometimes I think perhaps I am myself.
I know this little town lives unproclaimed
On the banks of a rushing river.
I know that it is there,
And it rests me to know.
In the quiet of this town
There is something living greatly—
I know that, too.
When I was little I knew it.

We played, we always played.
The out-of-doors was ours.
The town, the prairie, the hills and the river
Given with God's prodigality.
We made new games to fit the great playground.
We played, we always played;
Old and young played.

We didn't take God on faith—
There he stood out in the open
And we worshipped him.
Our hearts bursting with the full-blooded joy
Of it.
We worshipped him
In the rain and the snow and the sun.

In the summer
A lavender lady-slipper,
Suddenly come upon in the hills,
Was an adventure.
The rock-hung coulees;
The rainbow pearls locked in the flesh of the river clams;
The unkempt shaggy sloughs hiding away from the enterprising river;
In retiring distances, muffled echoes of steamboat whistles;
The silent voices of the trees in the great lografts traveling from Minnesota woods to St. Louis.

The season when the hills rang with the songs of the nut-ratherers;
A flock of wild geese flying South;
The Indians' hot palette splashed on the October hills—
All, all were adventures.

And when their brothers called from Picardy,
Old and young came from the hills, the fields,
the mills.
To fight, as they played, for the full-blooded joy
of it.

In shell-torn trenches,
Above the cries of the battle,
My people could laugh, and shout:
"There's nothing to worry about!"
In the hills by a rushing river
A lavender lady-slipper blows
I know that it is there—
It rests me to know.
I like to think about it."

Dear Just a Minute—Buchanan County, Including dear old St. Joe, did not cast 20,279 votes against and 4637 for the good roads amendment; nor did it vote 15,264 to 4304 against the new Constitution. Just the reverse. The Globe-Democrat got its yoke and no columns mixed, that's all. Please make this correction, in justice to a part of the State that is just as progressive as any other, and a damn sight more so than some.

We did make it in a way by withdrawing the statement that same day. We only printed it at all because so many incredible things were being said.

No. 67345622: Sign on a restaurant:
This place fare to employers.
Most places are—only this man meant to say he is fair to employees. You said it when you said we don't know what we are saying.

We like the spirit of this statement, issued after the election from the headquarters of James Hamilton Lewis, one-time aspirant upon the Democratic ticket to the governorship of Illinois:

The great personal compliment of the elections—as now seen from the wide sweep of the nation—was to James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and Alfred E. Smith of New York.
Each was the Democratic candidate for Governor of his State. Senator Lewis got a personal vote from Republicans of over 300,000, running 300,000 ahead of Cox, candidate for President—and forced his opponent to run over 300,000 below his candidate for President, in a vote of 590,000 majority for Harding.

Gov. Smith in New York got over 800,000 personal votes in a million and a half majority for Harding. Smith had the full Democratic city machinery and administration of
New York, and the upstate cities of Buffalo, Rochester and Schenectady, and the cities of Greater New York, as well as the support of the Hearst papers in New York.

Senator Lewis had the opposition of the Chicago city hall and city administration and all the Illinois downstate city administrations were Republican. He had as well the Chicago Hearst papers supporting the city hall candidate, though personally not the enemy of Lewis.

Gov. Smith of New York and Senator Lewis of Illinois can now take consolation, as Presidential aspirants for the future, that the President-elect, Senator Harding, was beaten 100,000 for Governor of Ohio in 1910. He is now President-elect of the United States.

we had never resigned at all.

Ten thousand Washingtonians
Are wanted. Have them shipped.

The Kurds assault Armenians;
The Poles attack Ruthenians.
Don't send us any Fenians.
For Ireland is a stew!
We cannot spare Sardinians
Or even Abyssinians.
So, send some West Virginians.
Three regiments will do.

The Finns and Scandinavians
Are stirring up Moravians
To massacre Moldavians.
Send cowboys, or police!
And, since those vile Bulgarians
Are acting like barbarians,
A corps of Delawareans
Is needed, now, in Greece.

The Letts and Lithuanians, Galicians and Ukrainians,
Are killing Transylvanians.
And this we can't allow.
We're short of Caledonians,
So, send some Oregonians,
New Yorkers or Bostonians.
To stop this bloody row.

DECLINE OF LABOR EFFICIENCY.

Samuel M. Edison, in Recent Address.

BEFORE Government control was adopted the employees in many railway shops were paid on a piece-work basis. During Government control all piece-work on railways was abolished.
The result has been a serious decline in the efficiency of certain classes of employees. The Railroad Administration entered into national agreements with many classes of employees which have imposed burdensome restrictions and have greatly increased expenses. The Railroad Administration also established at Washington a number of boards of adjustment to which employees of all the railways could appeal discipline and grievance cases from the individual managements. These boards rendered numerous decisions which were by increased expenses, and we are now confronted with demands from the labor unions for the establishment of similar boards under private operation. The railways cannot restore the efficiency and economy of operation which formerly prevailed unless they can secure efficient work from their employees. The employees are today paid the highest wages in history and are working on an eight-hour basis, and it is their duty, not merely to the companies but to the public, to give one good hour's work for every hour's pay that they receive. If the railway managements are opposed to certain labor policies adopted under Government control it is because they know that these policies have resulted in a decline in the efficiency of labor.

AMERICAN RELIEF WORK.

British Traveler to London Spectator.

AMERICA has been doing more for the relief and reconstruction of Europe than all the other Powers put together. This is a bold statement, but from personal experience and observation I believe it to be absolutely beyond dispute, and probably the measure of her help is only feebly indicated by that comparison. Since the armistice I have visited most of the countries between Asia Minor and Denmark, and between the English Channel and the Baltic provinces. Everywhere I have found social service agencies from America working along unostentatiously, but very practically and efficiently, in the interests of the people suffering from the effects of the war.
There is no regard for nationality, race, religion or politics, but simply the recognition of human need. The American is positive, practical and constructive, and anything that touches his sympathy makes a strong appeal to his idealism.

THE AMERICAN LEGION.

From World's Work for November.

FOR more than fifty years the American Legion will be a powerful influence in American life.
Just how it will exert this influence is not apparent, yet one fact is clear: its great tendency will be a nationalizing one. Its membership is drawn from all parts of the country; it represents every section, every race, every religion, every political party, and every social grade which goes into the making of the American complex. The descendants of Plymouth and of Jamestown here and themselves in close association with the northwestern Europeans who did so much to people the country in the nineteenth century—the Irishmen, the Germans, the Scandinavians; while the still more recent arrivals, the Italian, the Hungarian, the Pole, the Slovene, the Jew, discover that they also are parts of a coherent, unified nation. Indeed, in its comprehensive representative character there is no organization which can be remotely compared to the American Legion. All these several elements are now joined together by splendid memories and by what, properly accused, may be a splendid purpose. They all have the pride of achievement, and of achievement for a national end.

LONG EVER AGO by RUPERT HUGHES...

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

THE two women turned to Kate with hungry curiosity, but she went into her own room and busied herself with making up her bed.

A few days later, after the noon dinner, when Della and Kate had carried away from the table the dishes they had set out on it with the same briefest imaginable flirtations with Kate went to the window and raised it, though the day was none too warm.

Up and down the elevated trains were rumbling, watched by thousands of others in the elbow colony along the tracks. A few of the passengers on the platforms attempted to start the briefest imaginable flirtations with Kate and waved to her or lifted their hats with ironic courtesy. But Kate regarded them with blank indifference.

Della looked at her sadly and shook her head over the lonely old thing she was, and the undercurrent of her sorrow that was somehow different from the abundant sorrows of wives and mothers. The pity of it seemed to be that Kate had never known these anguishes. They are the only griefs that mothers do not pray heaven to spare their daughters.

Suddenly Della saw Kate's back waver; she saw her shoulders leave the sill and her hands reach out into space as if to clutch at something. A faint gasp was heard, but Della felt sure that Kate was shouting something to somebody behind her.

She lunged so rashly outward that Della ran and caught her about the waist and hauled her into the room, yelling in the abrupt silence left by the vanished train.

"Have you turned distracted entirely?" Kate tore her mother's hands loose with unfilial vigor and darted back to the window, shrieking: "Oh, he's gone! He's gone!"

Della dragged her away once more, while the passengers on another train stared and wondered at the scene, and old Bridget rose from her chair and tottered forward in panic.

"Whose gone? And where gone?" Della shouted. "The saints be among us, but it's you that's gone."

Kate flung her arms about her mother and began to sob: "And all the years I've watched and waited!"

Bridget sank into the nearest chair and whispered what Della howled:

"Who's gone? Who were you waitin' for?" But Kate wept in a storm till Della's curiosity changed to anxiety and she began to soothe her child in convulsions with many a "Hush! Hush! child! Hush! Ooh, avourneen! Shoo shoo!"

She led Kate to a chair, where Bridget and she turned her and gave her salts to smell and wet a cup of tea for her and finally had her facing the world again with something of her old-time calm.

And at last, though they forbore to question her, she answered their devouring need with an exclamation:

"You know, ma, how I've watched at the window so long!"

"It's little else I know," said Della. "You've all made sport of it, and a joke it's been to pa. But no joke to me, I tell you that, for I've always been hoping that some day he would go by on the street or on the elevated trains. So many, many people are forever passin', I felt in my soul some day he would go by, too."

"He—he?" said Della. "What he?"

"When pa sent me over to Ireland to visit you, grandma, I was only a little young slip of a girl, but we loved each other at the first glimpse like."

"We—we?" Della repeated, like a refrain. "And who's he?"

"Floyd O'Gara and me."

"Of the O'Garas across the hill?" said Bridget. "That's the name I was tryin' for to say the other mornin'."

"The same," said Kate. "Some of the others made fun of me for my New York ways and clothes, and said I was stuck up, but Floyd O'Gara told them what he thought of them, and that it was no fault of mine being born out in the States, and that they were only jealous of me and my dancin'."

"Then they turned on him and called him out of his name. At that time the pipers were in disfavor still, and his father had broken the first set of pipes Floyd bought with his own hard earnings, for his father said it was a disgrace to the family. But Floyd had the music in him and he had bought him new ones and begun to earn good money pipin' for all the dances and weddin's round about."

"So when they began to pick on me—you see, Floyd had taken a kindness to me from the start, and he told them that he wouldn't play for them whatever till they learned better manners. And they laughed and said little they cared."

"So for a while he had nothing else to do but pay attentions to me, and he would pipe for me alone, and I danced for him alone, and he piped the heart out of me. And he said I was dancin' on the heart of him under my feet. And by and by the others crept up to listen, and they grew that heartsick for dancin' to his music, they begged him would he forgive them, and we patched it up and the whole village of Lisdoonvanna was friends again."

"Only Floyd, for all he loved to see me dance, couldn't abide seein' me dance with any of the other garsons and he pipin'. So we quarreled, for I was young and wanted to dance with all the lads, and I didn't prize his jealousy."

"It was a fool's quarrel, but never a chance had we to make it up. For after a week of not speakin' I had to take the boat home. Once I was out on the lonesome sea, my pride broke in me. I wrote him a long, long letter, tellin' him I was in the wrong and I would dance only for him and with nobody else. The letter never came back to me. He'd gone away to South Africa or Australia. I learned it from a girl come out later on another ship; she said nobody knew where he went, for his mother died about that time.

Why Smith Decided to Do His Xmas Shopping at Once

"I began to watch for him, always hopin' he'd come to New York. Such millions come here, and go by our window. Why wouldn't Floyd? I was always afraid he would be on the train I didn't see. Sometimes I've sat all night at my window watchin'—watchin'."

"Della and Bridget had sat out the long story like watchers beside a coffin, shaking their heads and pursing their lips with sympathy."

"You creature, you," Della moaned. "I'm destroyed with sorrow for you; and I never knew! And we always jokin' at you."

"Just now—he went by!" said Kate, sipping her wet cheeks.

"The saints be among us, no wonder you were for leavin' out on the train!"

"Floyd was standin' on the platform. He's no longer the lad he was, but I knew him. And he saw me, and I waved to him—and he started hard, then he waved to me. He waved to me, and I could see by the look in his eyes he knew me. And he'd forgiven me. He was that hungry to see me, he nearly climbed over the gates."

"But why it is cryin', not laughin' you are?" said Della. "You've found him and he's found you."

"But we haven't found each other!" Kate screamed. "He's gone once more. I've lost him again."

"As if he wouldn't be gettin' off at the next station and runnin' back to you? Listen! I think I hear him just goin' to ring the door bell."

"But it was an express train! It won't stop till it gets to 125th street. That's miles away. He won't know the house. They're all so much alike along here. Oh, I'd rather not have seen him again if it's only to be losin' him."

Old Bridget put her lean hand on hers and murmured:

"Be alsy on hope and be alsy on despair is a good motto, my lanna. There's plenty of ways of findin' the daughter of Michael Morahan. Let him ask anny policeman. But if you find him he may not be free. It's not likely he's stayed an old maid like you. Maybe he was on his way home to his wife."

Kate writhed at this as if a javelin had been hurled through her body.

"Oh, don't say that! It couldn't come out so cruel after these years, could it?"

"It's a cruel world, agra," Bridget murmured, "and there's no sweet but has its bitter, though there's manny's the bitter that has no sweet."

Perhaps in her ancient wisdom Bridget knew that the best way for the old to encourage the young is to croak to them despair. They resist automatically whatever is imposed on them and fly to the other extreme. So while Bridget prated against hope, Kate took fire from the friction and cried:

"I'm goin' to keep watch till he comes by again. He's livin', he's in America, he's in New York, and he's on this street! He'll come back—I know he will!"

And old Bridget gave her for a benediction: "Heaven shine on your soul and bring you your heart's hope; you've sipped sorrow with the spoon of grief the long while. Sure and that you have!"

One thing Kate demanded with a peremptoriness new to her. She had authority already, for she was a woman like others, with a love story and a man on the horizon.

"Not one word of this to pa or the boys or anybody. I might lose him before I found him. What grandma says may be truth, that he has a wife and was going home to her. And children he might have—her children!"

But she determined to give Floyd every chance, and she rolled a chair up to the window and established herself there. All afternoon she played sentinel, her head turning this way and that to follow every car, and craning out to keep the street under espionage. The sky gloomed and glowed with the sunset. The people on the trains grew vaguer and duller and they all looked alike. The windows had lights in them. The sparse crowds of the afternoon thickened on the upward trains till the people were squeezed into a kind of human jelly. Still Kate watched.

When Michael came home for supper he found Della setting the table and Kate playing the Lady of Shalott at the window.

Michael insisted on knowing the cause of such behavior and Della answered:

"Hould your whist or go away somewhere. Haven't you a meeting of the Friendly Sons or the Knights of Columbus or some committee or something?"

For a wonder, Michael had no excuse for leaving home that evening. In fact, he was expecting a call from John Giluley, his friend and landlord, who was urging a real estate investment on him.

When Giluley came he wondered at the open window and Kate ensconced there. He shivered a little and with doubtful altruism advised Kate to look out or she'd catch cold.

When the window in front of Kate could not be hinted down he sneezed and suggested: "Maybe we might go in the parlor?"

So he and Michael left the comfortable dining room and went into the uncomfortable parlor. Michael had to go through the dining room to the icebox of hospitality several times in the effort to make the parlor more comfortable. On one of the trips Kate had another attack of excitement. She stretched herself prone across the sill and shrieked wildly well:

"Floyd! Floyd! Here! Here! Here!"

"Here yourself!" cried Michael. He rushed to her, grabbed her heels, and restored them to the floor, where an old maid's heels belong.

"Leave go! Leave go!" Kate cried, fighting so hard that Michael could hardly hold her.

Della ran in from the kitchen, and when Michael called to her for help, she also attacked him, commanding: "Lave her loose! Lave her loose!" so loudly that Giluley came running in.

Michael reasoned with Della: "Can't you see it's a fit she has! Get me a rope and a docter, quick! Troth, she was yellin' the way she'd rise the police."

But Della and Kate outfought him, and Kate ran back to the window and leaned out farther than ever, shouting louder than before: "I'll be down there in half a minute!"

"You'll be down there a dom sight quicker than that," said Michael, seizing her again. "Is it lipplipsy she has, or hydrophoby? I don't know. She'll be frothing at the mouth anny minyute now."

John Giluley had an idea.

"Try her with a glass of water would she run from it. If she does, it's the genuine hydrophoby."

He turned to the faithful pitcher on the sideboard, and, filling a glass, held it out to Kate from as far as his arm would reach.

Kate was just leaving the window. She gave the water a glance, knocked the glass aside, and ran from the room. Giluley dampedly answered his own questions.

"She did it! She has it!"

Michael was about to pursue the flying Kate when Della checked him and, bidding him and his guest sit down, recounted the whole story. There was time enough for that and for Michael's "I-told-you-so."

"But what keeps them so long gone?" he wondered.

"Ooch!" said Della. "They put hard words on each other; it's years ago; they'll need manny soft words to make up for them. They're lingerin' on them long stairs, belike, thinkin' it's a lane in Lisdoonvanna."

Mr. Giluley's only comment was a sneeze and a suggestion.

"Maybe we might close the windy now?"

Never Get Hubby's Breakfast in Curl Papers

—Mrs. Ida C. B. Allen

UNTIDY KIMONO ALSO TABOO.

Thrifty Housewife Advised to Keep Home and Own Person Charming and Beautiful.

By Fay Stevenson.

BE THRIFTY, save where you can, on the table, the household furnishings and your wardrobe, but NEVER sacrifice beauty and charm in your thriftiness. Don't forget to serve the food in dainty dishes, to decorate the table with flowers or bright colored leaves, and never get hubby's breakfast in curl papers and untidy kimono.

So spoke Mrs. Ida Cogswell Bailey Allen, noted lecturer on cookery and conservation and a former worker under Hoover during the Food Administration.

"In other words, always consider the beautiful in your thrift budget," continued Mrs. Allen as she took me into the living room of her cookery school, which is curtained and draped and decorated with all the feminine skill which she so advocates for the thrifty woman.

"No one believes in thrift and conservation more heartily than I," declared Mrs. Allen, "for, of course, that is part of my business, but at the same time the thrifty housewife must not overlook the things which make her home and her own person charming and beautiful. I loathe the type of woman who serves her husband breakfast on porcelain dishes such as one uses for a canary, who fuss about with her hair in curl papers and an untidy kimono. Maybe she is thrifty, maybe she has planned out a weekly budget which is wonderful and saves the dollars as well as the pennies, but if she has forgotten to make the home beautiful and interesting, if she has forgotten to buy herself an attractive morning dress, I am afraid that her thrift does not amount to so much after all."

"When you think that a husband and children need inspiration, a touch of the beautiful before they go to work," I asked.

"Certainly they do," replied Mrs. Allen. "We all do. A man or a child who is sent out from a home which lacks beauty and the things which please the eye is cheated out of a proper home environment. The man of that little wife in curl papers, who may appear dainty and sweet in the evening, but she has started him wrong in the morning and somehow it is the morning impression which lasts. ### SMOCKING.

SMOCKING is a pretty way of arranging and holding in place the fullness in various parts of garments, as across the shoulders or front of a blouse, or at the wrists or waist of a child's frock. The cloth to be smocked must be gathered with even stitches and drawn up to about one-fourth the measurement when plain, and the smocking in consists of ornamental stitches on the surface of the gathers.

The material should be charted for gathering, on the wrong side, by horizontal rows of dots, the space between the dots, usually from one-eighth to three-eighths of an inch, depending on the weight of the material, and the amount to be gathered; the distance between the rows varies likewise, from three-eighths to three-quarters of an inch. The dots are drawn in pencil, measured and guided by a ruler, or transfer patterns may be bought for this purpose. For the gathering, strong thread, 40 to 60, should be used; the gathering should be done on the wrong side with one little black stitch at the first dot to prevent the knot from slipping through the cloth. The needle should lift the cloth between dots, passing over just a few threads on each dot. When all the lines of gatherin are in, the material should be drawn up to one-fourth of its original width and fastened by two threads tied together. Then on the right side of the cloth the gathers should be pulled evenly in place, each actily alone each row.

The decorative stitches are then put on with any embroidery cotton or silk suited to the cloth, of the same or contrasting color. The first stitch always used at the top of any design is the outline, worked on the first row, the thread being allowed to drop naturally below the needle, and the tip of one plait taken up in each stitch.

The single cable is worked from left to right, like the outline, but the thread is reversed at each stitch, that is, dropped below the line for the first stitch, thrown above the line for the second, below for the third, and so on. Double cable is made by working another row of single cable close under the first row, but reversing the thread in the opposite order, that is, above the line first, then below, and so on.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Jack Frost's Busy Night.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

JACK FROST himself never shirks. He is one of the busiest workers in all the great world. Not only is he a great worker himself, but he makes other people work. No one can get more work out of other people than can Jack Frost. There is very little loafing when he is about. He despises a loafer and the minute he discovers one makes him so uncomfortable that he simply has to do something in order to keep warm.

And Jack himself does wonderful things. You know he turns the little raindrops held in the clouds into beautiful snowflakes, each flake a wonderful thing. He turns water into solid ice. Sometimes, in winter, when he is feeling very strong, he splits great rocks apart and cracks open trees. He makes soft earth as hard as rock. In those days, the days of his great strength, he knows no pity toward those who have been lazy and are not prepared to meet him.

But Jack Frost never comes suddenly with all his strength. He sometimes comes unexpectedly and brings discomfort and sometimes suffering to those who are not prepared, but as a rule he merely does a little pinching of ears and toes and noses at first just as a warning that it is time to prepare for winter. And for certain of the little people of the Green Forest he does certain things to help them so that they will be ready for the days when he will be without mercy.

Now, the very night after the day in which Chatterer the Red Squirrel had met his cousin, Rusty the Fox Squirrel, for the first time Jack Frost arrived in the Green Forest. He spent the night there, and a very busy night it was. He noticed at once that only a few husks of the hickory nuts and burrs of the chestnuts had opened, and at once he set to work to open all the rest. Jack Frost is rather fond of the Squirrel family, largely because nearly all the members of it are thrifty and not afraid of work. He knew that Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Rusty the Fox Squirrel could open the husks of the hickory nuts, but that if they had to do that it would take them a very long time to lay in their supplies for winter. It would mean that they would have to climb the trees and bite off each nut for the husks which wrap the hickory nuts clinging fast to the trees. But if the husks were opened wide

THE CALL OF THE ANIMAL

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

THE other day a man was stricken with heart disease on a lonely road in the country. The bark of his faithful dog, kept up for hours, finally brought aid.

Unfortunately, the man died of heart disease, but the great fight of the dog, whose throat had become hoarse with calling and who did not desert his post, is worthy of reflection.

This marked another instance in demonstrating the almost human instinct of this animal, faithful to man through the centuries.

The historians of the Great World War are busy recording the wonderful war record made by man's faithful friends, incidents replete with courage, comradeship, keen intelligence and instances of actual willingness to die for the cause of serving.

I have before me a number of letters written in the past few months. All of them have one message: "Do something for the dog."

Many of these communications tell of cases where dogs are left to starve or are otherwise abandoned by unkind people. Their suffering is not known because they cannot tell it.

They go on for days until the proper organization is notified by some good person or they are otherwise apprehended by the police.

I would like to see some definite, binding, legal regulation that would bring punishment to any person who has abandoned a dog, or, in fact, any other helpless animal. Such a person who goes unpunished is encouraged in his reckless irresponsibility of inflicting suffering and acts similarly toward humans as well.

If a law were passed that would make him amenable to prosecution for such conduct he would not dare abandon the dumb brutes to the winds of chance.

If people are not human, they should be made to conform with human instincts. They should not be permitted to go scot-free when they have inflicted suffering on a defenseless animal, no more than when they cause suffering to a human being. It is only pain in a lesser degree.

Further, I would like to see some legal restriction on keeping dogs cooped up in small apartments in a large city. This is cruelty, but is rarely so regarded by the owners of such animals.

Does not the open, their place is not in the congested city, especially the weak, the wan and weary canines.

This summer I had occasion to visit a place in the country where dogs from the city were sent by a kindly disposed person to be cared for out in the free open space, where they could romp at will and where they were cared for.

There were dogs that were going blind, lame animals and other such creatures that had been cast aside and left to die in the city. I felt somehow that this is a splendid thing to do.

I can't help wishing there were more kindly disposed people like this, who would take them away from the crowded city into God's green acres.

Duofold Health Underwear

for Men, Women and Children

"Haven't you changed yours yet?"

It isn't sensible to wear summer underwear in late fall weather. Cold saps the body's vitality, undermines the health, invites discomfort and pneumonia. Wear Duofold and be comfortable, indoors and out. Made in double layers—cotton next to the skin, wool outside. Ask your dealer to show you Duofold.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

HOW THEY GET IT.
Time was that college presidents
Engaged in seeking contributions,
Enlarged upon the excellence
Of their scholastic institutions.
On magnates they paid frequent calls
And long and earnestly they pleaded,
For dorms and labs and lecture halls
And other things the college needed.
And, when their story all was told
They found it left the magnates cold.

But when a millionaire today
A college president approaches
The only words he has to say
Relate to costly football coaches.
He tells the captain of finance
That if he'll only bark to reason,
The team may have a better chance
To be the champs the coming season.
And without parley or ado
The gentleman of wealth comes through.

For it is not the college which Keeps bright the lamp of knowledge burning,
That's looked on by the idle rich;
As a deserving seat of learning;
An institution may begin
Its work of uplift in a shanty.
But if its football team can win
The gent with cash will always ante.
Which proves that in these glorious days
The strong arm stuff is all that pays.

LOOKS SMALL TO THE GUESTS.
The hotel man who got only three thousand per cent profit must have been astonished at his own moderation.

"We have just learned of a teach-and has retired with the comfortable fortune of $50,000. This was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious effort, indomitable perseverance and the death of an

For many seasons now the Slocum Milling Football team had been beaten by the lads from the rival regiment at Punkville.
So the Slocum manager did a bit of thinking, with the result that on the day of the match, when Punk-ville came to lunch as usual with Slocum, they found a splendid repast awaiting them, with wines and all sorts of good things to eat but bad for football.

The visitors did themselves well, while the home team held back quietly, and the manager began to rub his hands at the thought of an easy victory.

Presently they all filed out to the ground for the contest. The Slo-cum's manager was startled to find there a team of fresh, keen-looking lads, ready for the fray.

"Who are these?" he asked the lunchers suspiciously.
"Those? Oh, they are the playing team; we are only the lunching team, you know!"—Irish World.
